Find Body of Bucyrus Woman, Beaten to Death

LOCKED HOUSE HIDES SLAYING FOR A WEEK

Mrs. Daisy Wilson, 60, Victim; Husband Disappears When Son Makes Discovery.

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, March 24—The body of Mrs. Daisy Teeters Wilson, 60, was found, her head badly beaten, in a locked cold room at her home about 6:30 o'clock last evening by her son, Raymond Teeters, who arrived last Saturday from North Carolina to visit his mother. Coroner O. R. Kackley of Galion said that death was caused from concussion resulting from blows on the head. She had been dead a week, he stated.

Police have organized a search for the dead woman's husband, John Allen Wilson, 63.

Teeters told police that his stepfather informed him his mother had gone to Mansfield to visit relatives, upon his arrival at her home, and the same information was given police who went to the home yesterday afternoon about 5:30 after they had received a telephone call from another son, Dory Teeters of Butler, asking them to go to the Wilson home to see if his mother was all right.

Mystery Letter

The call was prompted, he told officers, after he had received an unsigned letter, the contents of which police did not divulge.

Raymond Teeters told officers that he came to Bucyrus last Saturday but was unable to get any answer at the Wilson home and stayed at the home of a neighbor Saturday night. He was attempting to get into the house Sunday when his step-father came to the door, he stated. It was at this time that the step-father said Mrs. Wilson had gone to Mansfield to visit relatives, the son said.

At Death House 5 Days

Police disclosed that the son who found his mother slain had lived five days in the house where her body was hidden.

At first, the son apparently accepted the story that his mother was away on a visit, police said. He stayed at the house Sunday through yesterday, and when police came to make their inquiry in response to the letter from Butler, his suspicions were aroused, particularly when the authorities declined to discuss the contents of the letter.

Police, finding the son and husband at the house and being told Mrs. Wilson was away on a visit, did not press the matter. After they left, the son's suspicions continued to mount until he finally took a screw driver and pried open the lock that led into the room where his mother's body lay.

Teeters found the body of his mother, clad only in stockings, just after he made the discovery, the husband, who had been to a grocery store nearby, returned, and immediately started out a rear door, Teeters told the officers.

When asked where he was going, he replied, "I'm going to Aunt Mom," the son reported. To this, Teeters said he replied, "You don't need to, I've found her."

Tried Lock Before

The son told police that he had tried the lock on the parlor door earlier in the week but did not insist when his step-father discouraged him by saying that his mother "would not like it."

A key to the padlock fastening the door was found beneath a pan on a window sill in the kitchen, but officers have been unable to locate any instrument that might have been used in bludgeoning the woman to death. A small rug found in the room seemed to have been freshly washed. Clothing belonging to Wilson was found in a suitcase

School Action Dropped in Scioto Plant Area

Due to the uncertainty of the disposition of the territory lying within the Scioto Ordnance area, it was decided to abandon any plans for solving the school problem in that particular district for the present, at a meeting of the county board of education last night in the office of Supt. D. T. Mills. It was reported that diplomas to be awarded seniors in the various county schools had been ordered and dates for the closing of schools were discussed. Vacation periods varied this year and because of this dates for closing of schools also will vary it was pointed out.

YANKS GREETED BY CHURCHILL

Prime Minister Reviews Air-Borne Troops at U. S. Army Base.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, March 24 — Prime Minister Churchill paid a surprise visit to American air-borne troops in the English countryside today and in a voice of deep feeling told them they "soon will have the opportunity" of landing upon the soil of Nazi-occupied Europe."

In company with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, senior commander of American ground forces in United Kingdom, and Major Gen. Lewis H. Brereton, commander of the U. S. Ninth air force, the prime minister witnessed the colorful spectacle of hundreds of American skytroops leaping from swift-rolling waves of planes on to the green English fields a few hundred yards from the reviewing stand.

"You have a great part to play," Churchill told them. "You are specially trained. You are the most modern expression of war."

"It is with feelings of profound encouragement that I have the honor to review you here today. In these weeks which are passing so swiftly I see gathered here on English soil these soldiers, specially trained, of our great American ally preparing themselves to strike a blow for a greater cause than either of our two countries have ever fought for in bygone days," Churchill continued.

"It is a world cause because, though no one can tell how the future of the world will shape itself, we are determined that the

GERMANS RUSH MEN TO POSTS ON BLACK SEA

Full Scale Occupation of Rumania and Bulgaria Made To Halt Reds.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, March 24 — Turkish advices reported today German reinforcements had been rushed to all points on the Rumanian and Bulgarian coasts of the Black sea and indicated possible beginning of full-scale occupation of all of Rumania as part of Hitler's preparations for a last-ditch stand against the advancing Russian armies.

Turkey herself was said to be casting an anxious eye over German troop movements throughout the southeastern Europe.

An Istanbul dispatch said it had been learned reliably there the Germans were in full control of every Rumanian and Bulgarian city on the Black sea, with all local troops under Nazi officers.

By one unconfirmed estimate current in Ankara, the Nazis have drawn off 25 divisions from their central reserve in Germany in order to occupy Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria.

Turks Watch Developments

The Turks, following their established principle of taking precautions against every possible contingency, were said to be reexamining the possibility the Germans might invade Turkish Thrace —the bridgehead into the Balkans and the European route to the Dardanelles.

An Associated Press dispatch said a rigorous check in Istanbul in connection with the report the Germans had begun taking over all facilities in Rumania yesterday failed to produce either confirmation or a denial. Telephone communication between Turkey and Bucharest, the Rumanian capital, was suspended.

No information had yet reached Turkey to indicate the Germans were marching into Bulgaria in force, although reports earlier in the week had said Nazi military authorities were assuming control of communications and railways there.

Expectations in Ankara, however, were that Bulgaria would follow Rumania in the step-by-step reoccupation of the entire eastern Balkans believed to have been laid down by Hitler in order to make a determined bid to halt the Russians in western Bessarabia and along the Black sea coast.

(A London broadcast quoted a Swiss dispatch as reporting that Prince Cyril of Bulgaria and Regent Bogdan Philov "have been ordered to the headquarters of Hitler next Monday.")

Neutral sources said the new Quisling regime in Hungary, assisted by the gestapo, was pressing a purge of anti-Nazis and Jews throughout the country.

Roosevelt Asks Nations To Aid People Hitler Marks for Death

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 24—President Roosevelt, reaffirming the intention of America to aid the escape of refugees marked for death by the enemy, proposed in a statement today that the free peoples of Europe and Asia temporarily open their frontiers to victims of oppression.

The Chief Executive also told a press-radio conference in a separate statement that America would fulfill its pledge for independence of the Philippines.

He remarked to reporters he had quite a bit to offer today on foreign policy, and he spoke in a sarcastic vein of those who, he said, had asserted this country lacked such a policy.

Reading the initial paragraph of his statement on refugees, he said it was very good material, [illegible] tyranny and oppression and [illegible] exist; a world based upon freedom, equality and [illegible] in which all persons [illegible] of race, color or creed may live in peace, [illegible] security [illegible] fear, [illegible] privation.

U. S. BOMBERS HIT NAZIS 3RD STRAIGHT DAY

By The Associated Press

LONDON, March 24 — American heavy bombers drove into Germany for the third straight day today, bombing military targets in western Germany, a United States communique announced, following strong RAF night blows at objectives in France.

While Flying Fortresses smashed into Germany to the accompaniment of the German warning service, "Achung, (attention) Achung! Strong enemy bomber formations flying over western Germany." Liberators bombed airfields in northeastern France.

These attacks raised to 19—a new high record—the number of attacks in a single month. Fourteen of the attacks in March were directed against targets in Germany.

Strong Fighter Escort

As on yesterday when a six-prong assault was made on railroad yards, aircraft stations and other objectives in western Germany, the heavy bombers today were escorted by strong formations of Lightning, Thunderbolt and Mustang fighters.

RAF heavies, bombing objectives around the industrial city of Lyon in southern France and the rail yards of Laon, 80 miles northeast of Paris, last night brought the total Allied air forces over Germany and occupied territory in 36 hours to between 5,000 and 6,000 planes. Bomb tonnage for that period was boosted to around 7,000.

Two RAF planes were lost last night in operations which included mosquito stabs at the Rhineland communications center of Dortmund, and minelaying missions.

61 Nazi Planes Downed

The United States air forces announced 61 enemy aircraft were knocked down in yesterday's blasting of six targets in Germany.

While losting 27 heavy bombers and six fighters, American headquarters reported heavy damage at Handorf airfield, Hamm rail yards, and at Muenster, Brunswick, Werl and Achmer.

Two raids yesterday were made by American marauders against Creil, 20 miles north of

NAZI SUPPLY LINES BOMBED

Allied Planes Hammer Florence and Padua; Cassino Fighting Continues.

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NAPLES, March 24—Two new bomber blows against enemy supply lines in northern Italy—at Florence and Padua—were announced by allied headquarters today as heavy fighting continued in Cassino with no material change in the situation.

American Marauders yesterday blasted the Campo Di Marte freight yard, largest in the Florence area. Reconnaissance showed great destruction to warehouses and tracks.

Other airmen yesterday hit railroad bridges at Pontassieve southeast of Florence and Falconara Marittimi, above Ancona.

Inside Cassino, New Zealand troops still beat savagely against stubbornly defended German strong points with the support of tanks and a heavy screen of artillery and mortar fire. The Nazi defenders were supported by both air attacks and increased artillery fire.

Official reports said the latest phase of the relentless struggle for the town's ruins began shortly after noon Wednesday with enemy movements observed near the Hotel Des Roses, which still is in German hands.

New Zealanders attacked the Germans on the western edge of the town. A spokesman said "some little progress was made and it is believed the enemy suffered severe casualties."

Forty to 50 German planes shot up highway 6 behind allied lines east of Cassino after bombing Teano with what was officially called "little effect" on the preceding day. Seven enemy planes were brought down by anti-aircraft batteries.

Coastal Spitfires shot up 13 small sailing vessels in Yugoslav waters, destroyed a Siebel ferry, and damaged an E-boat. No allied planes were lost during the day.

Cong. Smith Joins in Attack Against Farmer "Coercion"

Congressman Frederick C. Smith of Marion was among those who took a hand yesterday in congressional proceedings that resulted in the house voting tentatively to prohibit payment of federal salaries to any person who demands that farmers join the AAA program as a condition of draft deferment or to obtain priorities on fuel or farm machinery, The Associated Press reported.

Both he and Congressman Clarence J. Brown of Blanchester, from the district that includes Union county, said they had received complaints from farmers. Both are Republicans. Brown declared there had been many instances in which Ohio farmers were told they must join the AAA in order to get gasoline allotments.

The action of the house was followed by charges of "politics" from Democratic quarters.

The amendment cutting off federal salaries for any person requiring that farmers join the AAA to share in any federal rights was offered yesterday by Rep. Harness (R-Ind.) to the agriculture supply bill and was adopted 88 to 66 with the Republicans voting almost solidly for it. The vote, taken after several members told the house that farmers had complained of "coercion," was subject to a roll call, probably today.

RUSSIANS PUSH NEAR BORDER OF RUMANIA

Aim at Cutting Vital Rail Line 5 Miles West of River Boundary.

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, March 24—Pushing through the foothills of the Carpathian mountains, Marshal Ivan S. Konev's second Ukrainian army drove hard today for the Prut river boundary of Rumania and the important north-south railway paralleling the river five miles further west—a railway which is one of the keys to the northeastern corner of Rumania.

The Prut is the boundary of Rumania proper. The Dniester, which was the pre-war boundary, has been breached on a wide front.

Advance units of Konev's mobile forces were reported stepping up the tempo of the drive in the more solid country of the rising Carpathian foothills.

Red army troops, front dispatches said, already are within sight of the Carpathians and in some sectors can glimpse the winding Prut 15 miles to the west.

Germans Make Grim Stand

(Between Tarnopol and Proskurov where the Russians announced a 35-mile breakthrough, the German communique said "grim defensive fighting against superior Soviet combat groups continues." The Germans asserted they had repulsed other Russians northwest of Kovel, 33 miles from the Curzon line in old Poland. The Red army also was reported attacking southeast of Vitebsk in White Russia "with strong forces" and on two sides of the isolated Crimea.)

Boris Polevoy, war correspondent in Bessarabia, wired Pravda that the Germans and Rumanians were fleeing in wild confusion, abandoning rifles and machine-guns. Polevoy said the peasants of Bessarabia were meeting the advancing Red army in colorful processions.

With Konev's swift advance through northeast Bessarabia against Rumania units, their German commanders appeared unable to hold them together for a determined, concerted stand, field dispatches said.

The Nazis apparently were feeling the strong pressure of the Russian columns toward Czernowitz, important rail and highway city at the foot of the Carpathians, approximately 90 miles due west of Mogilev Podolski. They were reported struggling to throw up defense lines around the city as the Soviet drive developed in intensity from the north and the east. Czernowitz is regarded as the key to the Rumanian province of Bucovina.

Fierce Lwow Commentations

Further north Marshal Zhukov's three-day old drive, in a 35-mile advance, took his forces into the heart of the communications area controlling Lwow's connections with the lower Ukraine, the Russians said.

This strong push by the first Ukrainian army also outflanked Tarnopol, dispatches reported, and left the twin German defense bastion of Proskurov to the east within the Red army's salient. It appeared that the German counter-offensive in this sector has been broken and that immediate withdrawal or destruction faces Field Marshal Von Mannstein's axis armies.

RECALL JOAN BERRY IN CHAPLIN TRIAL

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, March 24 — Joan Berry, who has testified she kept many an illicit tryst with Charlie Chaplin, was recalled today for further cross-examination at the comedian-producer's trial on Mann act charges.

The 24-year-old former dramatic student, who in another case alleges Chaplin is the father of her child, told a federal court jury their intimacies took place in Beverly Hills and New York City.

His attorney, Jerry Giesler, was headed off by government objections whenever he attempted any reference to Joan's previous sex experience, if any. As his final question of the day he asked Miss Berry if, on her return trip to Hollywood, she was accompanied to the train "by the same man who arranged for your rooms at the Pierre Hotel" in New York.

U. S. Attorney Charles H. Carr had been leaping to his feet repeatedly during the cross-examination. Again he bounded from his chair. His objection was sustained by Federal Judge J. F. T. O'Connor, and the upshot was that Miss Berry responded only that Chaplin personally did not buy her tickets from New York to Hollywood.

Slender Miss Berry, whose auburn hair falls over her shoulders, sat erect in the witness chair, her hands tightly clasped in her lap. One or twice she appeared on the verge of an emotional break, as when prosecutor Carr asked her bluntly:

"Did you have sexual intercourse with the defendant during July and August?" (1941).

Giesler in cross-examination, brought from Miss Berry the statement that she had met the slight, silver-haired film comedian in May, 1941.

She testified she was intimate with Chaplin about two weeks after she had met him.

"Did you consent voluntarily?" Giesler asked.

"Yes," Miss Berry responded, almost in a whisper.

She testified Chaplin did not pay her bills at the hotel Pierre in New York, where she said she stayed for several days, and testimony did not disclose who did.

REP. MARTIN IN LINE TO HEAD CONVENTION

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 24 — House Minority Leader Martin of Massachusetts was reported in line today for the permanent chairmanship of the Republican national convention but the important choice of a keynoter appears to be wide open.

National Chairman Harrison E. Spangler announced that the 26-member arrangements committee would meet in Chicago April 18 and 19 to pick the temporary chairman, who served as keynoter, the permanent chairman and complete details for the nominating convention beginning there June 26.

Martin has been approached by party leaders who want him to handle the gavel, as he did in Philadelphia in 1940, but thus far he has not said he would accept.

Choice of a keynoter appeared likely to generate a controversy, with potential presidential candidates taking a hand before the issue is settled. As the name implies, the keynoter is supposed to start the convention off with a bang, pointing the party's path toward its November objective of electing a president.

Thus far the list of possible chores has been confined largely to public officeholders but there is a disposition on the part of some high ranking Republicans to choose a man primarily representing business, rather than political, interests.

OATS DISAPPEARING FROM GRAIN MARKET

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, March 24—The eating habits of mares and does, now properly enshrined for postery in popular song, have had an effect on the nation's oats supply which does not lend itself to gay, lilting rhymes—oats are disappearing at a rate far more rapid than normal.

Stocks of oats on hand at the end of the present crop season—July 1—may be reduced to the lowest level since the drouth years of 1934-35 and 1936-37, the war food administration said today.

Mares and does, of course, are not the only oat eaters. A good part of the food diet of hogs, cattle and other farm animals is oats. They are disappearing rapidly because livestock numbers are at record levels and there doesn't appear to be enough corn to keep all animals fed.

This situation has encouraged farmers to hold oats back on the farm. Some companies which use the grain to produce human food have had difficulty obtaining supplies, despite the fact prices are bid at OPA ceilings in major markets. Heavy imports of oats have been made from Canada.

"Disappearance of oats from July 1 through Dec. 31, 1943, was 669,101,000 bushels, which was 2 per cent larger than for the same period in 1942 and 30 per cent larger than the 10 year (1932-41) average," the WFA said. Stocks on Jan. 1, 1944, totaled 756,628,000 bushels, which was 166,033,000 bushels less than a year earlier.

Prices for oats have staged a strong advance over the past year. Based on the monthly average at Chicago, 100 pounds of good steers would buy 18.8 bushels of oats in February, 1944, compared with 25.8 bushels a year earlier, the WFA stated. One hundred pounds of good to choice hogs would buy 17.1 bushels of oats against 25.7 bushels in 1943.

Nazi fire raiders scattered incendiaries in some sections of London before dawn. Some damage and a small number of casualties were announced.

A final assessment of British reconnaissance photographs and intelligence reports obtained after the RAF unloaded nearly 26,000 tons of explosives on Berlin in 15 heavy raids from Nov. 18 to Feb. 15 was said last night to have disclosed "administrative confusion throughout Germany and German Europe."

An authoritative British source said at least 326 factories in Berlin have been destroyed or damaged, five of them on Hitler's top-most priority list.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"That's really a great editorial you just read to us, Judge. Where did you say it appeared?"

"In 'The Stars and Stripes'...the newspaper of the U.S. Armed Forces in Europe. Kind of gives us folks back home something to think about, doesn't it, Bill?"

"It certainly does, Judge. Particularly the last paragraph. Would you mind reading that again?"

"Glad to, Bill. It says, 'We can remember the days of prohibition, when moonshine whiskey made quick fortunes for bootleggers, crooked politicians and dishonest police officials. As a result, we claim we know what we want in the way of liquor legislation and feel those at home should wait until we return before initiating further legislation on liquor control'."

"Out of fairness to our boys over there fighting, Judge, how could we disobey such a wish?"

The officer said the Lexington's search extended to within 350 miles of the place where the islander talked to the Japanese trader.

FIRE INSPECTION HELD IN GALION

Special to The Star

GALION, March 24—Nearly 200 were present for the dinner-meeting at First Reformed church Thursday to climax the day's events when Galion had its first citywide fire inspection in 16 years.

The inspection was made by the Fire Prevention Association of Ohio at the reques. of the Galion fire department and under the sponsorship of the Galion Junior Chamber of Commerce. W. L. Walker, local insurance broker, was chairman of a committee of 10 local citizens who had charge of arrangements for the inspection. All buildings of the city with the exception of factories and homes came under the program. Students in the schools were given questionnaires for voluntary home inspection by their parents which were returned to the schools to provide a survey of fire hazards by the fire department. To eliminate these hazards, was the purpose of the inspection.

Throughout the day, assemblies were held in public and parochial schools.

The dinner at the church in the evening was attended by citizens, inspectors, firemen and Boy Scouts. William Amick was toastmaster, and the speakers were Rolfe Rosenlund, chairman of the fire inspection committee of the F. P. A.; Mr. Krieger of the Ohio Inspection Bureau, C. W. Little of Columbus, president of the F. P. A. and 'Smoky' Chief Rogers of Chicago, fire clown whose talk was full of humor as well as practical experience on fire prevention measures.

Low Flying Fortress Scares German Farmers

By The Associated Press

A U S BOMBER BASE IN BRITAIN, March 24—Lt. Mack Long of Middletown, O., was bombardier on a crippled Flying Fortress which buzzed over Germany on two engines at an altitude of 50 feet for two hours yesterday, causing farmers to run to cover and stampeding cattle.

The ship, "Vera Mae," had its engines shot up by German fighters which also wrecked its hydraulic system and set a box of flares afire, during the raid on Brunswick.

"Farmers were jumping from their hay wagons and running for cover," said Tech. Sgt. Joseph J. Miskel of Sugar Notch, Pa. "One hot-headed grant was so mad when his team of horses bolted that he grabbed a rock and threw it at us. We were flying so low that if his timing had been good he would have hit us too."

Market Good and Prices High Is Post-War Business Outlook

Government Control, Labor Rate and Material Costs Seen as Factors Affecting Production of Civilian Goods.

(Last of a Series)

By The Associated Press

What are the post-war market prospects for Ohio industries and what will the price tags say?

If the score or so firms surveyed know what they're talking about, the markets are going to be good but the prices are going to be high. Some mentioned specific figures, like 20 per cent higher than pre-war. One said simply, "abnormally high." A few said lower.

Predictions of lower prices were conditional—with an "if" or "unless" attached. The "ifs" and "unlesses" were summed up by R. E. Carpenter, executive vice president of Spicer Manufacturing Co. of Toledo:

"I do not know what government controls will be exerted over labor rates and material prices, but, if the old and reliable law of 'supply and demand' is allowed to function, I should expect that eventually costs will be reduced from present levels."

J. K. Owen, of the market research department of National Cash Register at Dayton, said:

"There seems to be a general feeling that prices will be lower after the war although no very definite means by which these lower prices are to be secured have been suggested. We really have no comment on this point. Lower prices are desirable if it is possible to obtain them."

"Because of the uncertainty of the rubber situation after the war," commented an official of General Tire & Rubber Co., "it is difficult to predict price structure. It is our opinion that it will be a slightly higher price immediately after the war, but we are not sure how long this will continue. The chances are that there will be so much rubber available that rubber prices will drop sharply, and this should be reflected in tire prices within a year after the war's end."

Owen-Corning Fiberglas Corp. of Toledo expects expanding markets for products in which its own specialty "will be incorporated as a component part," such as heating, air conditioning, cold storage, quick freezing, home-building, fireproofing, etc., and comments:

"Unit costs drop when markets are expanded and when savings in production efficiencies can be made through volume production. • • • We look forward to [illegible] continued price reductions [illegible] manufacturing processes [illegible] their improved

"If present trends, both labor and material-wise, continue, even under a somewhat controlled basis, we would estimate that our post-war merchandise prices would be increased about 25 per cent."

International Harvester:

"The post-war prices of motor trucks undoubtedly will reflect the post-war price levels. The costs of productions and distribution in the immediate post-war period undoubtedly will be substantially higher than they were pre-war, as to how much higher we can not guess."

Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. at Mansfield:

"We believe that prices will be higher • • • because of increased labor rates and possible higher costs for materials. The heavy demand for peace-time goods will make it possible to expand mass production techniques and this will tend to keep prices within reason, but we fear that the above two factors will create higher prices in the post-war era • • •."

D. H. Kelly, executive vice president of Electric Auto-Lite Co. at Toledo.

"Due to increased labor costs, the price structure will be considerably higher after the war • • •."

Taylorcraft Aviation Corp. at Alliance.

"This (price) question is difficult to answer, not knowing in which direction labor and material costs are bound. • • • from present indications our prices will be somewhat higher in the early post-war period • • •. Eventually, we look for lower prices for airplanes."

Bond Houser, president of Troy Sunshade Co.:

"The cost of our products will be abnormally high immediately after the war. • • • this will apply whether there is much unemployment throughout the country during the period reconversion. These high prices • • • will have to prevail in the first spurt of business activity, due to the firm hold which labor has over the economies of production. • • • there is no possibility of future lower prices without some cataclysmic type of business recession during which labor can be forced to release its hold on the economies. In my own estimation I can not imagine such a thing as happening."

George L. Draffan, executive vice president of Ohio Brass Co., at Mansfield.

"Assuming present wage and material price levels, the prices of our standard materials should be from 10 to 20 per cent higher than they are."

"Price structures will be approximately 20 per cent higher than the pre-war period."

However, one of Ohio's top labor leaders, George M. Harrison, president of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks and of the Railway Labor Executives Association, took issue with the thought that labor costs would be a long-term determining factor in ultimate prices.

"The general objective of labor, of course," he said, "is to maintain and improve its standards but this does not necessarily increase the price of a product.

"New techniques, new machines, and new materials are constantly coming along to increase production and decrease prices. The labor charge in products is constantly being reduced. One historic instance was when Henry Ford established the $5 day and at the same time reduced the price of his automobile.

"Of course in the period immediately following the war, there undoubtedly will be considerable confusion and probably an inflated standard of living. But to argue that this will continue after we get into the full swing of peace-time production is contrary to our whole industrial history and experience.

"Labor is entitled to a decent wage, and on the other hand, capital is entitled to a fair return. Both of these are possible without making prices so high as to retard consumption. Labor, after all, is just as interested in seeing goods bought as capital."

GALION, March 24—Through the efforts of the International Red Cross, Mrs. Mamie Williams of Galion received direct word Thursday from her son, a prisoner of the Japanese government. He is Pfc. Dewey Stands At Top of Poll of Kentucky G.O.P.

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., March 24—In Kentucky, which Republican leaders are hoping to swing into the G.O.P. column in the coming elections, Thomas E. Dewey leads the list of popular choices today for the presidential nomination among Republican voters.

Field reporters for the Institute asked Kentucky Republicans to pick their present preferences for 1944 from a list of men most often discussed by political commentators and party leaders as leading G.O.P. possibilities.

Dewey	31%
Willkie	30
MacArthur	25
Bricker	7
Warren	1

In a similar survey reported in December, Wendell Willkie received 31 per cent of the vote, Governor Dewey 26 per cent, General Douglas MacArthur 20 per cent, Senator Robert Taft of Ohio 12 per cent, Ohios Governor John W. Bricker 8 per cent, California's Governor Earl Warren 1 per cent, Lieutenant Commander Harold Stassen, former Minnesota governor, one per cent.

Previous surveys throughout the country show that when Taft's name is omitted from the list, a substantial percentage of his followers go to Dewey, which accounts in part for the increase in the Dewey percentage in Kentucky. At the same time, the New York governor has shown increasing strength in recent weeks throughout the South and the country as a whole.

Sentiment Is Against Short Federal Ballot

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 24 — The expressed sentiment of the states toward the pending servicemen's vote bill swung slightly against federal ballots yesterday when the White House heard from the last of the 48 governors polled.

Gov. Olin D. Johnston of South Carolina informed Mr. Roosevelt that the Palmetto state does not recognize the short-form federal ballots provided in the bill and that nothing will be done to authorize their use by July 15.

The final score of the President's informational canvass stood: 20 states have not and probably will not approve the federal ballots; 19 states now authorize such a voting system or expect to do so; nine state governors are non-committal.

Mr. Roosevelt asked the governor's plans, to help him decide whether to approve or veto the new bill which puts primary emphasis on use of state absentee ballots with the federal ballots a "last resort" fall-back.

Marion Girl's Photo Winner in Contest

A Marion high school girl, Joan Laubner, was named by Band Leader Fred Waring as the prettiest girl of the 397th AFA Bn., at Camp Chaffee, Ark., according to the camp bulletin "Muzzle Blast." Her picture was reproduced in the March 17 issue of the camp paper. Her picture was submitted in a contest by Pvt. Jack Loeffert of "A" battery also of Marion, who is in an artillery tank division at the camp.

Miss Laubner, a junior at Harding High school, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Laubner of 524 Blaine avenue. She is a member of the Harding High school choir. Pvt. Loeffert is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Loeffert of 146 North Greenwood street. He was graduated from Harding High school in 1943 and prior to his induction into the Army Oct. 22, last year, was employed at Blakes Florists.

As a result of the contest Pvt. Loeffert was awarded a three-day pass and $10 spending money.

Runner-up for top honors were two young women from Pennsylvania. In submitting his selections the radio star said it was a pleasant job and that it was his belief that the girls "are typically beautiful American girls, and would be perfect 'sweetheart type'."

The Principles Are Fine

SECRETARY OF STATE HULL'S statement on foreign policy principles, it is immediately evident, do not get to the root of popular doubt about administration of foreign policy. The principles are fine. They are like the principles of the New Deal; no one can quarrel with them. But there seems to be something wrong about the procedure.

The American people are seeking reassurance that their government will not be held prisoner in an ivory tower of principle while other governments realistically get down to work on the terra firma of negotiations and action. Their uncertainty may be caused to some degree by an inferiority complex about the conduct of diplomacy in competition with such realists as Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin. But it also is traceable in part to the misgivings that have been caused by the direct evidence of diplomatic confusion beginning as far back as the London economic conference and extending through the misfortunes of Japanese appeasement, the difficulties with Argentina and present doubts about the disposition of naval and aviation bases and the inclination of Premier Stalin's government to discount whatever results may have been reached at Teheran by persistently putting the other conferees in that meeting at a disadvantage. This embarrassment, evidently, is being shared by Great Britain, which is forced to admit it shared this government's ignorance of Russia's intention to recognize the Badoglio government in occupied Italy.

The Roosevelt administration is plainly preparing to claim mastery of the intricacies of foreign policy in its forthcoming campaign for reelection. It must expect, therefor, to stand on its record of performance. Mr. Hull's restatement of the general principles which guide it is in order, but the assurance the people want is not in the realm of principle. They want to feel that their government is not working at a disadvantage in the full protection of national and international security during and after the war.

Wages, a Local Issue

THE trend in wage control is strongly from the executive to the legislative department. The Roosevelt administration apparently plans to shift responsibility for a ceiling on wage increases—the "little steel" formula—to congress, though the formula represents an executive, not a legislative, decision. Like other decisions of the same nature, it was issued under the broad authority of the price control act of Jan. 30, 1942, and the stabilization act of Oct. 2, 1942, both due to expire next June 30, unless renewed.

It is not difficult to guess that congressional decisions on wage control, like congressional decisions on tariff, would be made in accordance with the practical rule of politics that anything affecting a citizen's pocketbook inevitably becomes a local issue. Probably few individual representatives would care to buck organized labor's opposition in their home districts on a question of raising wages. Wage control would cease to be a matter of national policy and become as sectional as the tariff traditionally was under the former practice of deciding tariff questions on a local basis.

Since wage control as a curb on inflation is essentially a war measure, to be terminated could be handled better under emergency authority for the prosecution of the war. There seems no good reason, furthermore, why it should be shifted just in time to let the Roosevelt administration run for reelection without a responsibility which may suddenly have become onerous.

The Shelter Market

RICHEST of all ready-made demands for material and labor after the war is housing—the shelter market. The possibilities are suggested in a study by Twentieth Century Fund, indicating 1,300,000 new non-farm units a year will be needed for at least 10 years after the end of hostilities.

However, warns the study, satisfying the market will not take place automatically. The building industry must be prepared to give buyers what they want at a price they can afford to pay. The market will be affected by taxation, organized labor policies, real estate operators and mortgage lenders. It is a potential, not an actual, market.

Failure to realize its potentialities will bring a steady deterioration of housing. For example, no matter how well the building industry is prepared to perform, it can not do its job unless its prospective customers can buy what it has to sell. "The housing problem has often been confused with the problem of poverty," the Twentieth Century Fund study explains, "and the housing industry has been widely criticized for its failure to provide adequate housing for the lowest-income groups. But farmers are not blamed for malnutrition; clothing manufacturers are not accused of complicity in the wretchedness of the poor. Great as its deficiencies have been, the housing industry can hardly be held responsible for inequities in the distribution of wealth and other defects in the economy as a whole."

News Behind the News

Stalling for Time Seen in Handling of Service Vote Problem.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, March 24—Mr. Roosevelt's quaint quest for soldier-vote advice among the state governors, mostly Republican outside the south, may have sounded offhand like a big-hearted attempt to be more than fair about this thing. But it did not so appear to the governors.

Frankly, in the true political atmosphere of the congressional cloakrooms, the move also was recognized as an effort to put the Republican governors on the soldier-vote spot, to make them shoulder responsibility for whatever vote the soldiers get, making Mr. Roosevelt appear to be the champion of the soldier against state and congressional resistance.

It did not work out that way. The governors apparently sensed what was afoot and gave him replies which left the only spots of the problem before his eyes, not under their feet.

Governor's Reaction

In effect, a majority told him they were going ahead with plans for state-voting of soldiers if the army and navy would cooperate in distributing the ballots, implying that both he and the congressional bill were of considerable importance to them. The depths of his resulting difficulty is evident in the action of his congressional leaders. They held back the bill five days after its final enactment, sending it to the White House only last Tuesday. This extended to 15 days his opportunity of musing over the governors' replies and making up his mind whether to sign or veto.

Chairman Hattie Caraway, in charge of the committee dispatching such bills to the White House, was out of town and no excuse for the almost unprecedented delay was offered. One would have been futile anyway, because it was obvious the President was stalling for time.

All Guessing

Now the solitary truth of all this backing and pulling is that no one actually knows much about how many soldiers are going to vote, or for whom. From Mr. Roosevelt's actions to date, you would judge he expects them to vote for him if he collects the voteh for him if he collects the ballots than if the governor's do. There is some evidence to sustain this belief, but nothing conclusive.

I recently saw a letter from an officer in the South Seas who said 75 per cent of the officers were against Roosevelt, 65 per cent of the privates for him. It may stand something like that, although the army seems extremely critical of labor and left-wingers, who are the backbone of the fourth term movement so far. I do not know, and I cannot find any political authority here who even pretends to.

Depends On Generals

Senators Green and Lucas think fewer soldiers will be able to vote if the bill is signed than if it is vetoed. In that case, Public Law 711 (1942) will prevail and it provides some kind of a federal ballot. But most of congress believes the opposite, expecting the bill to allow more soldiers to vote. Personally, I suspect more depends on the army and navy generals than on what kind of a law applies. If they actively go out and furnish ballots of any kind to soldiers and collect these, large numbers will vote; otherwise, no law will get in that vote in bulk.

Perhaps the most important feature of the bill was an unobserved provision. It would restrict any service officer or executive official from issuing campaign speeches to soldiers, and forbid broadcasts sponsored or paid for by the government concerning political argument or material.

All news reports of political speeches and activity would have to be divided even between all presidential candidates entered in six states or more. The penalty for violations would be $1,000 fine and a year in jail. This would certainly hamper materially the freedom of fourth term campaigners in charge of soldier news distribution.

Congress Is Run Down

Deaths and Illnesses Becoming More Numerous.

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—The death rate in congress is becoming alarming. Since the 78th Congress convened a little more than a year ago, ten congressmen and three senators have died.

According to Dr. George W. Calver, Capitol medical officer, that's only half of the story. The incidence of illness has soared in the past year. Some is due to the prevalence of influenza this winter, but not all. And Dr. Calver points out that the recovery period of most members of congress is alarmingly long.

Dr. G. W. Calver

The only conclusion that can be drawn is that congress is run down. Congress has been in almost continuous session for more than five years. So-called "vacations" have been occupied mostly with fence-mending and campaigning, which in most instances are far more strenuous than work-filled days on the Hill. Those who have had periods of thorough relaxation have been forced to take them on orders from Dr. Calver or their own personal physicians. Dr. Calver says the toughest job he has to do is to make members agree to rest, even after he has convinced them that a physical crack-up is coming if they don't.

Value of Rest

"You would be surprised what a good rest will do, even when it's enforced by a major operation," he says. "I dropped in today to see Congressman Robert Ramspeck of Georgia. About two weeks ago, he had an operation for acute appendicitis. He had to rest and he looks better now than he has in a year."

Although I have been unable to find any year-to-year record of the death rate in congress, the old-timers tell me that the only year comparable to the present one is 1931, when depression worries were taking a terrific toll.

It was just before that that Speaker Nicholas Longworth made his classic observation: "Only the undertaker knows who will organize the next house."

Longworth didn't live to see the outcome of his prophecy. His death was the first of a series that saw control of the house pass, because of a majority of deaths in Republican ranks, to the Democrats.

There is little likelihood of that now. Of the ten deaths of house members of the present congress, five have been Democrats and five Republicans, so the Democrats still hold their numerical edge of six members.

Easily Upset

Some medical observers think much of the irascibility which led to the recent open congressional revolt against the White House may have been due to overworked nerves and sheer exhaustion. There are few times when men of good health can't get together to work out differences for the best interests of a nation at war.

So if you hear that your congressman or senator is taking a little "vacation" in the months to come, don't criticize. The chances are he has been ordered to do so by Dr. Calver so that he will be able to serve better when he gets back on the job.

Foxhole Atheists

Commenting on the popular saying, "There are no atheists in foxholes," Lt. Thomas M. Reardon, Roman Catholic naval chaplain who was with the U. S. marines on Guadalcanal, told a New York audience recently:

"We chaplains do not kid ourselves that a rebirth of religious life is around the corner. We have good, bad and indifferent citizens in civil life and in the services. The expression that 'there are no atheists in foxholes' is insidious. There are atheists. You cannot bargain with God. Nor can you say that you are going to wait until you get in a foxhole, and before that you can do anything you feel like, and when you get there a halo of sanctity comes upon you."

Daily Bible Thought

God does not impose his company on any one, but he welcomes them that seek his friendship: "Hear ye me Asa, Jehovah is with you while you are with him; and if we seek him he will be found of you, but if ye forsake him he will forsake you." —II Chronicles 15:2.

"Madam, did you know that one of your feet is bigger —or—I mean smaller than the other one?"

The Problems of Lasting Peace

By Herbert Hoover and Hugh Gibson

(This is another installment of the newly-revised, up-to-the-minute version of their important book, The Problems of Lasting Peace, prepared especially for this series by Herbert Hoover, thirty-first President of the United States and Hugh Gibson, former minister to Poland and Ambassador to Belgium and Brazil.)

INSTALLMENT XVII

Representation of Nations on the World Institution

THE organization of the League provided for an assembly representing all nations equally which could not take action without approval of the Council, a Council on which the great nations had constant membership—each with a veto power over all action. It was established at Geneva with an able and professional director and a secretariat. But meetings of the Council were held, only periodically, and the Assembly less often, usually once a year. The League was thus mostly conducted by a professional staff of various nationalities.

Thus there developed a certain weakness in that the League came to be held a sort of distant relative of the foreign offices of the world. It would seem to the writers that the regional councils, which at base should constitute the "world institution," should comprise super-ambassadors constantly in session. In other words, the nations would not await a crisis before convening sporadic meetings from which everyone was in a hurry to return to his normal job.

The interregional council superimposed over the regional councils could quite well be chosen from the Ministers of Foreign Affairs and should always include the larger nations.

One weakness of the League was its failure to revise onerous treaties. It thus became the bastion of the status quo. Certainly, experience shows that peace can best be preserved, not by preventing change and putting the future in a straightjacket, but by seeking to control change and direct it. Obviously, any attempt to maintain the status quo indefinitely is a direct invitation to war—for peaceful means being denied, the change can come only through force.

We suggest, therefore, that American policy should be directed to build the concepts of revision into the body of international law to a place of equal importance with the other pacific methods, alongside of conciliation, mediation, arbitration, judicial decisions, and cooling-off periods. It is further suggested that the application of any nation to the world institution for revision of treaty provisions, not sooner than ten years after their conclusion, should be implemented by the appointment of a committee of outstanding statesmen not interested in the dispute to report and negotiate a reasonable settlement.

THE question of authority or non-authority of the world institution itself to use force against an aggressor is the most difficult of all problems. The League experience on this question is valuable. The theory of the League was that all controversies between nations should be submitted to pacific settlement and that if any nation refused and began military action, it was to be dealt with as an aggressor. Thereupon, collective economic sanctions (breaking off trade or financial relations and "blockade" or "quarantine") or military force should be applied by the other members.

The League was thus founded upon two different concepts. One was to prevent war by settlement of controversies through pacific methods; the other, to assure peace by economic or military force against aggressors. The two concepts clashed.

It seems to us that certain realistic considerations must dominate this whole question.

The first is that economic sanctions contain two illusions. One is that such action is "short of War." The unemployment and suffering imposed on the recalcitrant nation by economic sanctions is about the same as war with the absence of shooting.

The other illusion as to economic sanctions is that all nations can be brought to support blockade, boycott, or quarantine. Every aggressor nation has friends who may deplore its conduct, but they will not take part in such actions against it.

It can be concluded that "quarantine," "blockade" or "economic sanctions" applied to great nations mean war and that any other belief is fooling. The only effective "sanction" in case of aggression is military action.

The League of Nations idea of its being obligatory on all member nations to use their collective military power is not likely to work in case of an imporant nation for the same reason that economic sanctions do not work.

It was proposed at the time the League of Nations Covenant was in formulation that the League should have its own international army, navy and air force with which to compel peace. That suggestion has risen again in the belief that such action is necessary if there are to be "iron teeth" in "collective security." Several objections were raised at the discussions of 1919. One criticism was that a body whose equal vote could be controlled by an aggregate of small nations representing only ten or twelve per cent of the people of the world might force the institution into adventures against the judgment of the larger nations who would have to do the work and suffer the losses.

A FURTHER criticism was that such an army, navy, or air force would have to be commanded by human beings of some nationality; they would have to be comprised of nations of different countries. The commander in chief of such an army, if its strength were sufficient to discipline a large power might become the dictator of the world.

As a new approach to this whole problem it may be that the world institution should be set up solely for settling controversies by pacific means. It may be that for a long time to come we should depend upon the Transition Period Trustees of Peace as the police force.

There is a great problem in timing the creation of the world institution. We have proposed that such an institution should be created as the last step in the Transition Period. We must first make peace before we can preserve it. There are many reasons for this course.

After fighting ceases there will inevitably be a period of great violence in famine, pestilence and revolution.

Under such conditions it is daring to assume that a world-wide institution can be entrusted with the maintenance of world order. However successfully large deliberative bodies may serve the cause of democracy in times of peace, they alone are inadequate for dealing with emergencies. They quickly become debating societies incapable of action.

But we may say at once that American peace policies should include participation in some sort of world-wide institution to preserve peace.

Nailing a Rumor

Australians May Have Notions But Phar Lap Never Could Have Been Done in by U. S. Admirers.

By DAMON RUNYON

I HAVE received a letter from a young American soldier in Australia who says:

"Mr. Runyon, when us fellows go into a bar over here and get to talking sport to the Australians pretty soon one of them is sure to say, 'Ho, you Yanks murdered Phar Lap.'

"I know Phar Lap was a race horse all right but what do they mean when they say he murdered him? I wish you would write and tell me something about that horse and why the Australians seem to think there was some crime in connection with him because it was all before my time."

Well, sonny, Phar Lap was a mighty runner from down under, surely one of the greatest horses ever foaled in the Antipodes. He was brought to the United States a dozen years ago and won the only race he ever ran on these shores, the $100,000 Agua Caliente handicap of 1932.

Then the horse died soon after, under circumstances that were explained by analysis of his organs at the University of California as ulcers of the stomach. But prior to the equine autopsy it was rumored Phar Lap had died of poison and baseless tales developed that the poisoning may have been intentional.

IT was said the horse ate grass that had been treated with arsenical insect destroyer on a farm near Tanforan racetrack outside San Francisco.

The rumors said this was the cause of death, though the analysis showed that the ulcers must have been in progress for at least a year. However, some foolish Australians preferred the other story and said the poisoning was deliberately plotted because the Americans feared the horse would make suckers of the champions of our turf. Apparently that daffy yarn has become tradition over there.

Phar Lap had been sent to the farm after winning the Agua Caliente handicap, to be prepared for racing at Tanforan. No one regretted his death more than our turfmen, especially those who never had the opportunity of seeing him in action. The skin was stuffed and sent back to Australia.

Phar Lap was a gelding and consequently has no direct descendants, but his blood survives on the American turf through a full sister, Nea Lap, by Night Raid-Entreaty, imported by Jock Whitney. She is the dam of the winner of the last Widener, the four-year-old Four Freedoms, owned by Jock's mother, Mrs. Payne Whitney. The sire of Four Freedoms was Peace Chance.

PHAR LAP was a big red horse and extraordinarily gentle. It is said that while he was on the farm outside Tanforan, the stable hands had a cameraman there and, unknown to the owners, were posing the children of the many visitors on the back of the horse and collecting fees for the pictures. He was foaled in New Zealand but did his racing in Australia, winning 37 out of 51 starts.

He was three times second, twice third and nine times unplaced. Including the Agua Caliente handicap, he won $332,250, which puts him ninth on the list of money winning horses of the world. He had an inordinate appetite for sugar and the autopsy disclosed a vast amount of that in his system.

The very fact that Phar Lap, which means something like Red Thunder, was brought such a long distance immediately attracted attention to him. His preparation for his first race, the Agua Caliente, was most unusual, because he never "worked" as our American horses do, but was brought out on the track at night for gallops and then with a big man in an overcoat up. Hence the clockers had no info on him.

ELIOTT, an Australian jockey who accompanied the horse, was his rider in the Agua Caliente and the big horse was left flat-footed at the start. He got away seven lengths behind the field and was trailing going to the clubhouse turn. Few observers gave him a chance. He was wagging his head as if in distaste of the dirt track. Then suddenly he began covering ground in great leaps like a mammoth kangaroo and soon overhauled the field, winning by much open daylight. Reveille Boy was second, Scimitar third.

The time for the mile and a quarter was 2:02 3-5, and American turfmen who saw the race gasped and said Phar Lap was something out of the equine world. No, sonny, no one in this country would dream of "murdering" a horse like that.

Time Out

By Truman Twill

Excuse us, please, while we fasten a sprig of forsythia behind our left ear, pour out a double slug of molasses and sulphur, kick a couple of fat robbins, fold up some long underwear, throw away an empty bottle labeled "Cough Syrup—One Tbsp. On Retiring"...

Hang up the snow shovel, bring in the sleds, oil the ice skates and store them away, stop off at the seed store and buy onion sets, inspect the screens for holes and loose joints, nail some new braces on the stepladder, plug the hole in the scrub bucket...

Start an argument about where to plant the sweet peas, slap a coat of varnish on the croquet balls, issue the usual warning about going easy on the Easter budget, check up on the lawn mower, arrange to borrow a lawn roller, send an overcoat to the dry cleaner...

Speak to a couple of paperhangers, finish the big book that was going to be read if it took all winter (and it did), vulcanize a pair of rubbers, throw away an old wool scarf, scrape up the last armful of kindling for the fireplace, take a peek at an old Palm Beach suit...

Count the leaks in the garden hose, look up the date for the beginning of the rainy season in the South Pacific, study up on the progress of the Russian winter offensive, make some tentative plans for spending another vacation in the back yard, spray the apple tree...

Muse briefly on how much better slack-wearing women will look when they quit appearing in fur coats, chew up the last half dozen vitamin pills and hope for the best, find out what is happening to the rhubarb if anything, sharpen a spade, fix a hoe handle, discuss plans for invading Europe...

Get in the mood for a glass of bock beer, start thinking about last year's straw hat, ask whether anyone has seen a pitcher's glove, wash a few windows, sweep out the clutter in the back seat of the family car, explain what will happen if any wearable clothing gets sent to a rummage sale...

Pinch a shrub to see if anything is stirring, discuss the matter of new linoleum for the kitchen, beat the grit out of a couple of door mats, drop a pair of worn-out wool socks in the wastebasket, oil the roller skates, round up a few hundred stray marbles...

Discuss what color to paint the porch furniture, nail up a loose trellis, worry about the usual epidemic of measles, publish warnings about the danger of being caught in a sudden change of weather without adequate clothing, kick off an extra bed cover and begin to sneeze.

It is spring again, believe it or not.

MARION'S BASEBALL LEAGUE PLANS FADE

Promoter Here Yesterday, but There's No Meeting.

The movement to bring organized baseball into Marion this year appeared to slip to a new low mark yesterday when Joe Dennis of Columbus, Ohio State baseball president who has been working for organization of a Marion group to take over a franchise in the league, visited here.

He had left word last week that he would be back yesterday, and hoped to find an interested group ready with some kind of a proposal, but yesterday there was no meeting. He talked to Municipal Judge W. Dexter Hazen, who had been acting as secretary of the local group and with a few other persons but there was no sign of progress when he boarded a bus to return to Columbus.

One development was inquiry made about appearing before a local club group to explain how a Marion team would operate, but arrangements for such a talk are still in the preliminary stage.

Although the prospects for a campaign locally to raise the $10,000 a Marion club would need to equip the park and finance the starting operations seemed to fade, Donnelly said nothing about any move to take Marion out of the six-team league schedule which has already been set up. The fact that Marion is booked to have an opening game May 2 here with Lima, with no local preparations whatever having been made for it, didn't seem to trouble him.

There seemed to be only two possibilities that would clear the air by May 2. One would be an unexpected surge of local interest great enough to raise funds, install lights at Lincoln park and do the dozens of other chores necessary to set the stage. The other would be for some outside interests to step in and run the whole show with little more than moral support coming from Marion.

Piles Are Never 'Mild'

DANGER IN NEGLECT

Although they may seem a "mild" ailment, especially when not giving pain or inconvenience, piles are in fact tumor formations without tendency to heal themselves, instead, they are likely, if neglected, to keep increasing in size, involving more and more of the rectal area.

Even a so-called "mild" case may be expected to undermine one's health, by inviting, predisposing to or aggravating other ailments, such as: indigestion, biliousness, stomach trouble, constipation, headaches, pain in the back and down the legs, secondary anemia with its run-down tired feeling, and general nervous irritability.

Removal of piles is the only positive cure. This can be done without knife, drugs or loss of time from work.

News of Mine Strike Caused Troops To Throw Down Guns

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, March 24 — A former private in the 37th (Ohio) division reports American soldiers on Guadalcanal island "threw down their guns" in protest after reading newspaper accounts of a strike of miners at home last summer.

"The morale of the soldiers at that point was the lowest I had ever seen it," Philip Scacco, 28, who recently received an honorable medical discharge after southwest Pacific action, told an interviewer.

The Clevelander said "several hundred of us" joined in the protest demonstration and added he heard that at least 2,000 troops on the island expressed disapproval of the strike after the news "had gotten around by grapevine."

In Washington War and Navy department officials said they had no official word on the reported demonstration.

Scacco related the protest was precipitated in a group foxhole during a Jap bombing raid when an Akron, O., sergeant opened a bundle of newspapers from home which contained an account of the miners' strike.

"What the hell are we fighting for?" Scacco quoted the sergeant. "Let's lay down our guns. We ought to give those strikers a dose of their own medicine."

PHILIP SCACCO

The soldiers acted spontaneously, Scacco said, and were not mutinous in their reaction. They were not then engaged in combat although they were frequently bombed, he added.

"The non-coms and officers circulated among the men and talked us into dropping the idea. We forgot the whole thing after two hours because we had a lot of respect for our leaders."

G.O.P. CANDIDATES SPEAK AT CANTON

By The Associated Press

CANTON, O., March 24—Three candidates for the Republican gubernatorial nomination stood on the same platform here last night and dropped intra-party feuds to join in attacking their Democratic opponents and the national administration.

James G. Stewart, mayor of Cincinnati, Paul Herbert, Ohio lieutenant governor, and Tom Herbert, state attorney general, together called for Republican support in the coming national and state elections.

Stewart, first on the program at the annual dinner meeting of employes of Stark County Republican Auditor Joseph L. Yoder, urged a campaign "without any mud, without any slander and without any slime."

Tom Herbert declared that winning the war—and the following peace—were the most important tasks facing the nation today.

Paul Herbert specifically attacked Democratic gubernatorial candidates Mayor Frank J. Lausche of Cleveland, Frazier Reams of Toledo. He asserted Lausche could not cooperate with his own city council.

Referring to Reams' criticism of state handling of rehabilitation for war veterans, he said that overnight facilities to train 100,000 men could be made available if necessary.

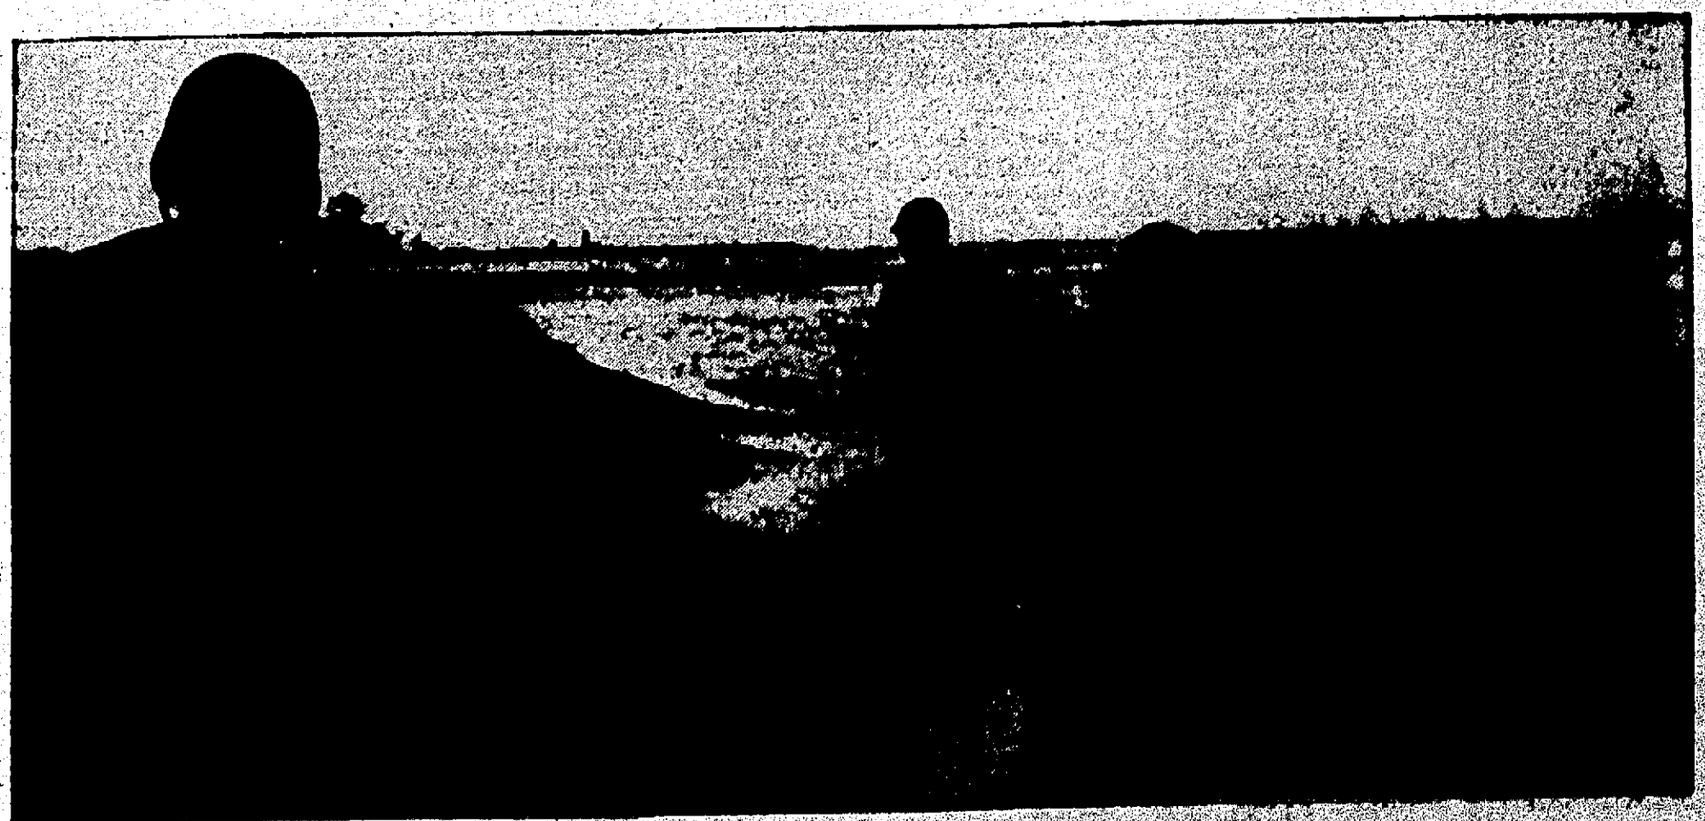
What a tablespoon of your used cooking grease can do at the front

In spite of fat rationing, the government asks every American housewife to save at least a tablespoon of used cooking grease a day . . . after she's got all the cooking good from it. Every drop is desperately needed to make gunpowder. These pictures show what our armed forces can do with just a tablespoon of your kitchen grease.

Just think—one tablespoonful will make five bullets! And it would be hard to find a kitchen where at least that much cannot be saved every day. Saved for a month, a spoonful a day adds up to one pound.

So, after you have got all the cooking good out of fats from frying, roasting, broiling, etc., save them in a can. Any can, even a soup can will do. (It will go to tin salvage afterwards.) The moment you have a canful, rush it to your meat dealer. In just three weeks' time it will be gunpowder . . . to be used in the war-vital ways you see pictured here.



JUST ONE TABLESPOONFUL of used kitchen grease will fire five bullets. Five bullets can mean the difference between life and death to soldiers like these. You can save at least a tablespoonful a day in spite of rationing.

Martha Bowers Taft still sparkles with political "it," trigger-quick at repartee and strong on platform eloquence. She has wavy, dark hair and merry, expressive, brown eyes which give her a natural warmth of personality.

The wife of United States Senator Robert Taft is at her best on the political stump. A lively sense of humor serves her well in captivating crowds. She can take the house down with a witty observation, just picked out of the air to fit the turn of circumstance.

Remember the classic of the 1940 pre-convention campaign? It concerned Mrs. Taft's perennial runner, and according to reports, the votes-for-Bob were climbing the ladders in Martha's hose. Well, the story actually stemmed from Taft's campaign for the senate in 1938, and it only happened once. Here's how:

Following her husband who came first in order to make a train, Mrs. Taft stepped forward with this earnest observation, "I am the most miserable woman in the world—for two reasons. My husband has just told a story on which my entire speech was based. And," she added above the ripple of laughter, "I have just discovered a runner in my stocking." The uproar was then deafening, and Bob Taft made votes by the carload.

This story became legendary, and Mrs. Taft continued to make headlines with her appearances.

As for the presidential campaign, the Tafts are earnestly supporting Gov. John Bricker. After the last convention, Senator Taft reportedly told Bricker, "Well, I had my chance, and didn't make it. Next time, I'll go along with you."

Mrs. Taft occasionally speaks in Washington to Republican groups or on war-time subjects before general organizations. One of her favorite pleas now is in support of the Taft-Gillette resolution calling for the feeding of children in occupied areas.

Even if Mrs. Taft isn't knee-deep in a presidential campaign, she still takes a strong interest in public affairs and politics. Her family background always pointed to such discussions, as well as her broad education here and at the Sorbonne. Mrs. Taft's grandfather served in congress from Minnesota, and her father, Lloyd Wheaton Bowers, became solicitor general.

It was this residence in Washington that brought her into contact with Bob Taft, the son of the then President William Howard Taft and the romantic setting of dancing in the famous East Room of the White House.

At a brilliant affair, the two were married at St. John's church on Lafayette Square in Washington.

The Tafts have four boys, three in the service.

She certainly isn't lifting a finger to push her husban's chances in the presidential campaign, but, count on this, she can meet any situation which these uncertain times might precipitate.

NEXT—Nina Palmquist Warren.

AUDITOR ASKS FINANCIAL RELIEF FOR OHIO CITIES

Wants Legislature To Consider Money Plight.

COLUMBUS, O., March 24—State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson today urged Gov. Bricker to ask the general assembly when it meets in special session next month to consider legislation which would "alleviate the financial predicament of local governments in the state."

The legislature will be called next month to liberalize election laws to enable Ohio soldiers to vote for federal, state and local officials.

Asserting that he was speaking for the state's Democratic leaders, Ferguson told the Republican governor in a letter:

"The serious financial conditions of the various cities of the state and the city of Columbus particularly, have made it incumbent upon the Democratic leaders of the state * * * to request that you include in your proclamation for a special session of the legislature next month, a provision for legislation to alleviate the financial crises existing in several of our local governments.

"The huge unencumbered state balance * * * is lying idle while cities of our state are suffering financial hardship. * * *."

The state auditor declared that before Bricker became governor local governments received approximately 40 per cent of the income from the sales tax, but now are given "only a share of a flat $12,000,000 distribution."

Bricker was visiting the south in a drive for delegates in his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination and was not available for comment.

FEW 18 TO 25 TO MISS DRAFT

All Who Pass Physical Test Virtually on Way to Military Service.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 24—The vast majority of men civilians 18 through 25 years of age are virtually on their way to a fighting war, unless they work on a farm or don't pass a physical test.

That became increasingly apparent today despite the uproar over drafting key technicians in industry. Only a comparative handful of men under 26 are likely to be deferred much longer.

The others are wanted for combat duty. The President has ordered it and all government agencies have accepted it. There is no struggle over that basic policy.

On the other hand, officials estimate 30 to 40 per cent of the under-26 men who are called will fail to meet physical standards and will go into 4-F, most of them to return to essential jobs.

Latest figures show that on Feb. 1 there were, in the 18-25 age group, 348,000 non-fathers alone who were deferred in war production or war-supporting activities other than agriculture. Of those, at least 100,000 would be rejected.

Following is the general situation as pieced together from informed officials of the agencies involved.

Two problems have been worrying production and manpower agencies:

(1) There are some young men, especially in new fields, like radar, synthetic rubber and 100-octane gasoline, who have better technical or scientific training than their elders and the Army recognizes these men when irreplaceable ought to stay on the job.

(2) Important industries like railroading, lumber and coal mining are in such desperate need of manpower that losing any substantial number of men at all would be disastrous.

State draft directors have been instructed to defer men under 26 in critical positions and irreplaceable. The dilemma is: How many men should the state directors choose and in what activities?

The production executive committee, including representatives of the war production board (WPB) war manpower commission (WMC), Army and Navy, has undertaken to help the state directors. And a formula is expected to be announced momentarily.

Overhanging the whole proceeding is the increasingly important role the Army is playing in determination not only of military strategy, but of occupational deferment policy.

Jap Propaganda Guns Firing New Barrage at India

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Japan's General Tojo is straining hard to make capital out of the Nipponese "invasion" across the northeast border of India from Burma, and it's of more than passing interest to find him trying to build a political sensation out of it with the claim that the so-called Indian national army, with headquarters in Burma, is participating with the idea of liberating India.

There is thusfar no major threat, either military or political, against India. Allied headquarters minimize the importance of the attack. However, I'm sure they don't mean for us to dismiss lightly any enemy invasion. We cannot forget that this great subcontinent is the chief allied base for the final smash against Japan. It's complete security is vital.

Chungking Shocked

Chungking is shocked by the development. Unofficially the feeling is expressed in the Chinese capital that the invasion is supplying the Japanese propaganda guns with the best ammunition they've had in months.

The attack has come in the Chindwin river area of western Burma, where the enemy has driven two or more columns across the border into the primitive Indian state of Manipur. The invaders apparently are headed for Imphal, capital of Manipur and terminus of a good highway which connects in the north with the main allied supply line—highway, railway, water, air — from India to China.

General Auchinleck, British commander in chief for India, sums the position up tersely with the declaration that "no real threat can materialize unless and until the Japanese manage to penetrate points where they can attack our main rail and river communications or our airfields in Assam." He says the Manipur drive is to divert allied forces and relieve the pressure on the Japanese to the south where the allies are driving for the big Nipponese airbase at Akyab.

That's the military angle. It strikes me, however, that there's as much or even more political purpose in this Japanese operation. There is small doubt that Tojo long ago abandoned hope of invading India in a big way, but he never has given up hope of causing revolt against the British.

Axis Makes Big Play

Both Tokyo and Berlin have been pouring anti-British propaganda into India over the air ever since the war started in an effort to start a revolution. The Japanese have posed as the liberators of the Indians, and have made grandiose promises of absolute independence.

One of the axis' best bets has been Subhas Chandra Bose, the Indian leader who has been trying to stir his people up from the security of Japanese controlled territory.

Tojo now tells us that the "Indian national army", which supposedly has been created from anti-British elements in Burma, is under command of Bose. This army, declares Tojo, "has begun its march to it's native land," but he doesn't indicate whether Bose is with it. The Japanese premier says the plan is to liberate India and put it in the hands of the "free India provisional government."

If Tojo's story isn't just a pipe dream, he undoubtedly is hoping to get revolutionary support in Manipur state, Assam and especially in neighboring Bengal where most of the violent anti-British sentiment exists. However, he's playing a terrifically long shot without confidence of success, since he is up against well organized American, British and Indian forces in India.

in the house. Wilson has been in police court on charges of intoxication twice, records show. He is five feet nine inches tall, weighs about 150 pounds, has brown hair mixed with gray, partially bald and medium complexion. When he left the house he was wearing blue overalls, blue shirt and a long black coat.

Mrs. Wilson is survived by four sons, Raymond of North Carolina, Dory of Butler, O., Harley Teeters, and Russell. The last named is with the armed forces in England and goes by the name of Wilson.

The body was to be shipped to Butler today for funeral services and burial.

Quarreled Frequently

Police, although they were not willing to disclose the contents of the letter received by the son at Butler, said they had little indication of a possible motive for the slaying. They said neighbors had told them the couple quarreled frequently.

Police said they were told the couple had lived together about 17 years under a common law marriage. They had lived in Bucyrus about 17 years, having come here from Butler.

Wilson was engaged in common labor work. The home they shared is located about five blocks north and east of the square on Water street and was a humble residence.

Police said they had no idea where to start searching for Wilson. Authorities throughout the state were asked to aid in the search.

Soon, now the Pontiac Quik, is scheduled to leave the assembly [illegible] Ala.

PITTSBURGH, March 24—Full service on all runs of the Pennsylvania Greyhound lines was resumed today as 600 drivers, maintenance men and terminal workers ended a week-long strike which had halted the company's bus traffic out of Pittsburgh to New York and Chicago and points between.

Agreement to terminate the walkout came after officials of the AFL-Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes appeared before the regional war labor board yesterday in Philadelphia.

Identical agreements were signed in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, under which employes were to return to work without discrimination, two dismissed drivers were to be reinstated with full seniority rights after 20 days' suspension, and there was to be a further union-management discussion of a company bulletin which provided that any driver who declined a run assigned to him should be discharged.

Rural Youths To Get Degree

Four from Pleasant School, Two from Morral Listed for State Honor Saturday.

Two Marion county schools today reported they will have youths receiving the state farmer degree of the Future Farmers of America in ceremonies at Columbus Saturday. One school, Pleasant township, with four youths to get the honor, is believed to have set a new Marion county record for the number of boys getting the honor in any one year.

The Pleasant youths are Donald Almendinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Almendinger of the Davis-Gooding pike, Charles Mautz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Mautz of Route 98, Edward Neidhart, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Neidhart of the Seiter pike, and Warren Seiter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Seiter of the Richland pike. Formal notices of the honors they are to get Saturday have been received by Milford Schmidt, their instructor.

The other school reporting youths selected for similar honor is Morral, with Paul Dasher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dasher, and Richard Greene, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Greene, chosen for the state degree. Their instructor is A. J. Bishop.

The state farmer degree is awarded annually to a group of Ohio boys for outstanding farming programs and satisfactory participation in school and community activities. The event at which they will get their awards is the annual state FFA leadership conference tonight and Saturday at the Southern hotel in Columbus.

Mr. Bishop, who serves as instructor at Harpster as well as Morral, reported Robert Turney son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Turney, and Charles Osborne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Osborne, both of Harpster school, also will get the state farmer degree. Vaughn Morral of Harpster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Morral, will get recognition for reporting local chapter activities to the monthly publication of the state FFA association. He will receive a medal.

Philippine Independence

On the matter of Philippine independence, the chief executive issued a formal statement acknowledging that today is the 10th anniversary of passage of the Tydings-McDuffie act providing for Philippine independence. That measure was a manifestation of a long existent American-Filipino friendship, Mr. Roosevelt said.

"It is a source of deep gratification to me," he declared, "to be able to say to hte brave people, who are now bearing the yoke of Japanese domination, that the return of freedom to their islands draws closer with each allied victory. The Philippine governmnt temporarily residing here possesses all the attributes of an independent nation. America will fulfill its pledge."

On the matter of nations in Europe and Asia admitting refugees, the President was asked whether this country also would open its doors.

The President said we were not yet bringing any here, since there were not enough to come, but there were many refugees who have reached a haven in North Africa.

The President said an inter-departmental committee which has been set up to see what can be done about aiding refugees has been operating successfully and that Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin have been advised of what has been going on. People actually are being brought out of axis dominated areas, Mr. Roosevelt said.

Cites Brutal Torture

He said that in areas subjected by aggressors many innocent peoples are "being starved or frozen to death or murdered in cold blood in a campaign of savagery."

Remarking that the United Nations intend to pursue the guilty and deliver them up so justice can be done, Mr. Roosevelt appealed directly to the German people and to "every man everywhere under Nazi domination" to show the world by his action that he does not share the "insane criminal desires" of Hitler, who is committing crimes against humanity, the President said, in the name of the German people. He asked Germans and others to hide the victims Hitler seeks, help them to cross borders to safety and try to keep them from the hangman's noose.

LONERGAN'S STORY HEARD IN N. Y. MURDER TRIAL

Accused Gives Account of Actions on Day of Slaying.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 24—Wayne Lonergan's story of what happened the day he is alleged to have murdered his heiress wife was read today to a general sessions court jury trying him for murder.

The 26-year-old defendant sat expressionless at the defense table as the details were unfolded.

He told the story of his meeting with an American soldier to Assistant District Attorney John Loehr in Toronto after his arrest last October and a Toronto police stenographer read it to the male jury. Spectators were barred from the courtroom.

Lonergan later repudiated the story in a statement made to the district attorney after he was brought to New York from Toronto.

Lonergan related he met the soldier on a street corner about 5 a. m. of the morning of the slaying after he had squired Mrs. Jean Murphy Jabury, attractive former show girl, to a theater and night clubs. The soldier, Lonergan was quoted as saying, accepted an invitatio nto go with him to the apartment of John Frederick Harjes, which the young aircraftman was using that weekend.

Lonergan said he went to sleep about 5:30 or 6 a. m. and slept until about 10 or 11 o'clock. The state charges his wife was killed early that morning.

A Toronto police stenographer began reading to the jury yesterday parts of a transcript in which the 26-year-old Canadian-born defendant was quoted as saying he and Patricia Lonergan separated because of "general apathy."

STEEL WORKERS OPEN PAY BOOST BATTLE

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 24—The CIO United Steel Workers of America, after more than three months of preliminary fencing, today began the main drive of what may be an epic campaign to smash the little steel formula and obtain other concessions in its contract with the steel industry.

President Philip Murray, flanked by union aids and a policy committee of about a hundred men, outlined to a six-man panel of the war labor board the basis of 14 demands, foremost of which are a general increase of 17 cents an hour, a guaranteed annual wage, vacations, dismissal pay, and a joint fund for steel workers in the armed services.

A brief of the union's case pictured the wage earners as the frozen segment of the American economy while industry and the farmers have a guaranteed minimum income now and in the immediate postwar years.

The current hearing involves 94 companies which employ more than 80 per cent of the 503,000 wage earners in the steel industry.

dark tyrannies which have overclouded our lives and drawn our people from their homes shall be broken and battered down, and that an example shall be made of the guilty which will prevent such tyrannies from being erected again upon the masses of the people."

It was Churchill's first inspection visit to an all-American unit and the prime minister paused repeatedly to talk with the men from overseas.

"I thank God you are here," he said, "and from the bottom of my heart I wish you all good fortune and success."

Both Churchill and Eisenhower stood up in the reviewing stand draped with red, white and blue parachutes, as fleets of sky troop-carriers thundered low over the horizon and tumbled out their cargoes of heavily-armed men.

Obviously impressed, Churchill took a firmer clench of his long, black cigar and turned to Eisenhower with a nod of resolute confidence on the role to be played by America's sky soldiers in the storming of Hitler's Europe.

Cage Teams Move on Columbus To Vie for State Championship

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 24—Seven sharply trained teams made the trek to Columbus today prepared to battle it out for Ohio's coveted class A and B high school basketball championships.

The eighth team—Worthington—lives just a mashie shot from the capital city and won't arrive at the scene of the double feature hardwood attraction until shortly before the firing starts tomorrow.

Seven of the teams, all four in class B and three in class A, will be seeking their first Ohio basketball state championship. The lone former champion is Martins Ferry and the Purple Raiders have been tabbed as the team to beat in the class A tournament which will be run off in the Columbus auditorium.

They have won 28 straight games this season and have averaged 65 points a game.

The class B tournament will be played in the Ohio State university gymnasium and not one of the finalists ever before reached an Ohio high school athletic association final tournament.

First round games in both tournaments will be played at 1 and 2.15 p. m. (central war time) with the championship tilts carded for 8 p. m.

1943 Champs Absent

Neither 1943 champion will be around. Newark was beaten in last week's regionals by Martins Ferry. Yorkville, the 1943 class B champion, was eliminated in its county tournament.

Battling with Martins Ferry in class A will be Middletown, Canton Lehman and Toledo Woodward. The contestants in class B will be Worthington, Philo, Lima St. John's and Akron Ellet.

In class A Lehman will play Woodward in the first tilt with Martins Ferry meeting Middletown in the other afternoon engagement.

The class B schedule calls for Akron Ellet to tangle with Philo and for Worthington to meet Lima St. John's.

The ticket situation was the biggest problem confronting H. R. Townsend, commissioner of the Ohio High School Athletic association and the man who runs this short pants show.

"There probably will be four persons for every seat we have," he said in reference to the class A tournament.

Tickets will go on sale at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning and Townsend said he expected the line to form well in advance of the "come and get 'em" call. No person will be allowed to buy more than four tickets and slightly more than 4,000 persons can jam their way into the auditorium.

Whether the class B tournament in the 2,500 capacity Ohio State gym would be a sellout still remained a question.

Tournament officials felt sure, however, that if Worthington reached the final game they'd have to hang out the "standing room only" sign because the Cardinals are expected to draw heavily from metropolitan Columbus.

Ferrians Have Best Record

Martins Ferry will go into the class A tournament with the finest record of any team in either meet. The Ferrians were eliminated in the first round of 16-team final tournament in 1940, won the title in 1941 and lost to Newark in the first round of last year's four-team final event. They haven't been beaten since.

Middletown's great team has lost only one engagement Toledo Woodward has been beaten twice and Canton Lehman four times.

In class B, Worthington and Philo have lost only twice each, while Lima St. John's and Akron Ellet have been licked three times each. Ellet, however, played only two games against a class B team during the regular season.

All eight teams were to go through brief workouts here today but the coaches indicated the drills would be just limbering up sessions to help the boys become accustomed to the tournament floors.

Story of Marion Minister's Surprise National Trapshoot Victory Related in Magazine Article

Rev. Garrison Roebuck in photo taken on Marion Gun Club range in 1941.

Many Marion residents are familiar with the story of how Rev. Garrison Roebuck, pastor of First United Brethren church, created a surprise in sports circles by winning the Grand American Handicap, top event in the trapshooting world, in 1931, but few realize what a startling event that was. This part of the story is told in detail in the March 4 issue of The Sportsmen's Review, official publication of the Amateur Trapshooting association, in an article reviewing past Grand American Handicap events.

The portion of the review pertaining to the record of Rev Roebuck includes the following excerpts:

"The most remarkable win in Grand American history came on Friday, the fifth day of the big tournament (1931), when the Rev. Garrison Roebuck, a minister of the Gospel of McClure, O., a small town in northwestern Ohio, captured trapshooting's greatest event—the Grand American proper—and his name was broadcast to the remotest corners of the earth. He had never before attended a registered tournament and had taken part in only a few club shoots at McClure. He had, according to his club mates, never broken over 85 out of 100 targets. He was probably the 'darkest horse' that ever won a big event in trapshooting. Outside of the club shoots at McClure he probably had never heard of the Grand American, but he got the streak and won, even in the hard way, having to shoot out two men, one of them a topnotch shooter and formerly a G. A. H. winner. The preacher just got the streak that wins, that's all; got it at the right time when it counted, and won.

"The G. A. H. had been won by men of mediocre ability several times, but never by one who had never attended a tournament of some kind. . . . At 1:30 p. m. those who looked at the big board noted that Garrison Roebuck was down 2 out of 75, and 25 to go. Then everyone was asking, 'Who is Garrison Roebuck?' The newspapers wanted this information, but it was some time before anyone could be found who had ever heard of Garrison Roebuck. Then Fred Harlow, Frank Foltz, Gail Ranson and Ray Welbaum, well-known tournament shooters, were on the board. Harlow and Welbaum out with 96. At this time Roebuck had another 25 to shoot and the crowd quickly learning that he was a possible, rushed down to Trap 17 to see him shoot the last 25.

"The crowd at this trap was as large as that in front of the clubhouse on the occasion of some shootoffs. Squads in front of 47, the one in which Roebuck shot, got tied up and there was quite a wait. This in itself would have disconcerted some good shooters, but it didn't seem to bother the minister at all. Possibly he spent the time in meditation and prayer. Who knows! It was to good purpose if he did. When the shooting was resumed, he was on the wrong peg, but moved over with the most extreme calmness. He started well with this fateful 25 with the first eight straight, and was still in the lead of any scores on the board. He missed one then, and after a little time another, and from now on out he must break them all to tie the 96. He broke them and a great shout went up from the multitude. His events were 24, 24, 25 and 23.

"By this time it was known who Garrison Roebuck was. He had come down from McClure with Frank Foltz and some others of the McClure club with whom he shot occasionally. He had an old field gun, evidently he had been something of a hunter. He borrowed from Charley Bogart a trap barrel for his stock and shot in the preliminary handicap on Thursday, breaking 88. He had, according to his club mates, never broken a 25 straight and his highest score up to the preliminary handicap had been 82 out of 100. He was on his vacation and as a diversion decided to come to the G. A. H. After the preliminary he was more undecided than ever about entering the G. A. H., thinking it was $20 thrown to the winds . . .

"One of the most intensely interested crowds that ever watched a shootoff (brought about by Rev. Roebuck having tied the other two shooters in the regular shoot of the G. A. H.) As usual, every point of vantage, the roof of the clubhouse, the supports of the water tank, everywhere, had spectators holding on and watching breathlessly . . . The preacher apparently wasn't affected by the numerous snappings of the cameras by the newspapermen and photographers.

"Those in the know thought that Harlow was almost a 10 to 1 shot and that at last there would be a repeater in the Grand American. But Fred started out by missing his first target, then his ninth and muffed three more, going out with a total of 20, for one of the best shots in the country . . . Fred was out of it. The two weaker brethren seesawed it out, keeping about even in misses and were again tied on 23 out of 25, not so bad on a shootoff for unseasoned shooters. Another 25 and again they seesawed, losing three apiece and totaling 22. A third string and the preacher got a good start and went straight up to his tenth, and then another good run before he missed one more to total 23. Welbaum had weakened by now and had dropped five for a 20, and the crowd went wild, the press wires were carrying the news everywhere that Rev. Garrison Roebuck was the winner of the 1931 Grand American. . . . Roebuck, Welbaum and Harlow divided the three first moneys, getting in the regular purse and Ford purses $787.10 apiece. The 95s, Dr. R. D. Miller of Marion, O., Gail Ranson, Springfield, Ill., Frank Foltz, McClure, O., S. L. Chidley, Des Plaines, Ill., and Dr. L. Finney, Georgetown, Ill., shot off for the fourth, fifth and sixth trophies . . . Dr. Miller took sixth. They drew $160 apiece . . ."

Grid Coach Says Team Work Foundation of U. S. Democracy

George Gauthier Addresses First Joint Athletic Banquet of Three Marion Junior High Schools.

By CHARLES ELLIOTT

Team work is the foundation of American democracy and the factor most responsible for the worldwide success of our fighting forces, and can best be developed in scholastic and collegiate athletics, George Gauthier, director of athletics and head football coach of Ohio Wesleyan university, declared at the first joint city junior high school football and basketball banquet at the First Reformed church last night.

Speaking before more than 100 junior high school athletes, coaches, faculty members, and guests, Mr. Gauthier pointed out that cooperation is essential in winning wars as well as ball games and that it "starts in grade and junior high schools, continues through high school and college, and branches out into the various vocational fields in later life."

According to Mr. Gauthier, sportsmanship deserves a place of importance alongside team work in the evaluation of the various phases and characteristics of competitive athletics. He said, "I know you boys had good sportsmanship in your athletics this year. The sportsmanship displayed in this year's tournament at Delaware was excellent."

Mr. Gauthier, since 1922 athletic director at Ohio Wesleyan and for several years supervisor of the District Class A high school cage tourney played annually at Delaware, gave an informative and enlightening speech. Dinner served at 6:30 was followed by group singing led by Miss DeMerll Hafer, city school's music instructor. Supt E. E. Holt served as toastmaster and introduced Mr. Gauthier and the other speakers.

Three Schools Join

Guests of honor at the banquet were the 1943-44 football and basketball players of the city's three junior high schools, Vernon Heights, Central and Thomas A. Edison. All boys who received varsity certificates were present. The three coaches, Ralph Kelly of Central, Ed Cooney of Edison and Bob McCracken of Vernon, each gave brief congratulatory messages on behalf of his school and introduced the team captains and ninth grade cheerleaders. Vernon football captain was Frank Stewart and basketball leader Don West. Cheerleaders were Joann Craven and Keith Malott. Football co-captains at Edison were Robert Frazier and Jim Willis while Henry Fields was basketball captain and cheerleaders were Ruth Seaburn and Joanne Fate. At Central, Larry Russell piloted the grid squad and Jim Nemes and Don Ziesler were basketball co-captains. Cheerleaders were Peggy Strope and Mary Jo Shields.

Cecil Gabler, Vernon Heights principal and president of the city junior high school athletic association, who presented this year's intermediate gridders and cagers to Coach Dewey Bohyer of Harding, termed this season a unique one. For the first time in the 12-year existence of the Marion junior high basketball league, the race ended in a three-way tie. Each team won three games and lost the same number. Most of the games were closely-contested, several being decided by mere one and two point margins. Coach Bohyer expressed the hope that all of them would come out for football and basketball at Harding High school. Joe Petrich, reserve Harding basketball coach and a leading candidate for the currently vacant head football coaching position, followed Mr. Bohyer with a short talk, in which he praised the junior high boys for their fine showing this season.

Praises Harding Team

Of special interest to Marionites in Mr. Gauthier's address was his praise for the Marion Harding cage team, which came within a whisker of upsetting the defending state champions, Newark, in the district tournament. He said, "I got great enjoyment out of Dewey's team in the tournament—who wouldn't? They had a nine-point lead with two minutes to go but they couldn't hold on long enough and Newark came through to win, 38 to 34. Although the Harding boys were playing above their heads, they showed the fine training they had received in high school and throughout their school life."

A highlight of Gauthier's talk was his description of the arduous, Spartan-like training course of Navy college students at Ohio Wesleyan. A total of 800 cadets, 400 in the V-5 program for naval aviation officers, and 400 in V-12, which trains deck officers, are enrolled at Wesleyan. And gathering from what Mr. Gauthier says, they have no picnic. Their training is a tough grind, and as he stated, the trainees have to be superior mentally since they are put through an accelerated course, which cuts to one year what would be two years of college in peace time.

Gauthier explained, "The boys get up at 5:45 and throughout the day they have classes except for an hour and a half period for physical training. The boys play all the American competitive sports. They learn to play basketball rough. In our American life, we have sports as one of the foundations of our education. That's why we have such a big sports program in the Navy. War is a team game that requires team work that you boys learned on the basketball courts and football fields."

Gauthier mentioned Capt. LaMar Faught, Harding High basketball star in the late 30's, afterwards an Ohio Wesleyan varsity cager, and now a pilot in the Pacific theater. Faught, Gauthier said, wrote him several times and in one letter expressed his desire to see sports continue throughout the war as they are essential to morale.

Leading Track Men After New Records in Cleveland Races

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, March 24—The Knights of Columbus games at the arena command the nation's track spotlight tonight.

The K. of C. carnival is only four years old tonight but five world's records have been broken during that time. Al Blozis of Georgetown university started it in 1941 when he heaved the 16-pound shot 56 feet, 4½ inches.

A year later when Ohio State's Bob Wright skimmed over the 45-yard low hurdles in 5.1 seconds, he followed Whitey Hald of Michigan Normal, who nipped off the 45-yard high hurdles in 5.4 seconds. Both were new world indoor records.

Two more records were lowered last year. Herb Thompson streaked through the 45-yard dash in 4.8 seconds and barrel-chested Greg Rice established a new world mark for the two-mile run in a time of 8 minutes and 51 seconds.

The feature event tonight is the Columbian two-mile in which Gil Dodds launches an assault upon the record which Rice set here last year.

Bill Hulse, who set a new American record 4:06 mile as he finished second to Gunder Haegg at Berea, O., last year, highlights the mile entry list. He'll have plenty of competition from Les Eisenhart, the former Ohio State captain, Bob Hume of Michigan, Rudy Sims of New York university and Al Daly of the New York A. C.

Buckeyes Meet Temple in Garden Tonight

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 24—For the fourth time in the six-year history of the event the Dartmouth Indians compete tonight in the N. C. A. A. eastern regional basketball tournament, which gets under way with two semi-final games.

The Indian quintet, studded with Naval and Marine trainees, takes on Catholic university in the first game of the Madison Square Garden card, with Ohio State meeting Temple in the other contest. The winners meet tomorrow night for the eastern crown, and the winner of that game will meet the western regional champion at the Garden next Tuesday.

Ohio State, Big Ten champion, brings two players selected by conference coaches for the all-star team. They are Don Grate, forward, and Arnold Risen, 6 foot 8½ inch center. The Buckeyes won 13 games and lost six during the season. Temple won 13 of 21 games during the season, including seven of their last nine.

McGinnis, St. Mary Cager, Wins All-Ohio Honorable Mention

Dan McGinnis, captain and high scorer of the 1943-44 Marion St. Mary basketball team, was given honorable mention in the United Press All-Ohio high school basketball selections announced this week. Ted Jacoos, star Ashland High forward and drop point-maker in the North Central Ohio conference, was placed on the second team and Jack Harris, Ashland, received honorable mention. Bob Baker, Mansfield player, was an outstanding choice for the first team.

McGinnis, a senior, was one of a handful of Class B players to gain a berth on the honorary squad. His consistent, dependable play throughout the season and the district tournament at Westerville contributed in no small measure toward his selection.

Jacobs, who broke all NCO individual scoring records this year with 229 in 10 games, won a second team spot on all three press association teams this year—those of the United Press, Associated Press and International News Service.

Chosen as captain of the United Press team was Alex Groza, of Martins Ferry center and the state's high scholastic scorer.

Of every 1,000 cadets in the U. S. Army Air Forces, 957 complete their primary, basic and advanced training without injury due to aircraft accidents.

Black Panther Credited with Wrestling Win

Black Panther won a two-hour three-fall event from Whitey Walberg in wrestling matches last night at the Armory. The Panther won the first fall in 13 minutes with a head lock. A rolling hammer lock executed by Walberg brought the Panther down in 16 minutes. Black Panther took his second fall in three minutes by applying the rolling hammer lock.

Angelo Martinelli and Franklin Hart fought to a draw in the first of two 45-minute semi-final bouts. Martinelli won the first of two falls in 16 minutes with a body press. A reverse body press by Hart brought Martinelli to the ground in 14 minutes.

In a second 45-minute two-fall bout Jack Moore won from Jackie Nichols by virtue of one fall. The remaining minutes of the bout were up before either one made a second fall. Moore brought the first fall about in 22 minutes by applying a head lock.

McCarthy Puts Four Yanks on All-Star Team of 1930-40

By CHIP ROYAL
AP Features Sports Editor

NEW YORK, March 24 — When Connie Mack suggested that All-Star teams should be named by decades, Manager Joe McCarthy of the New York Yankees was one of the first to fall in line.

Joe even climbed into the high-priced confines of Shibe Park at Philadelphia a while back to gab with the veteran A's manager about the selections.

In fact, McCarthy thought and talked for weeks about nothing but the best players of the 1930-1940 era. He insisted that he wouldn't be influenced by Mack, and that he wouldn't name any man who had been selected by Bill McKechnie of the Reds for the 1920-1930 period.

McCarthy is one of the toughest men in baseball to pin down. As a rule he won't say who he thinks is the best player for any position. When he does, his selections are really outstanding.

Here is Joe's team as selected in AP Features' "Baseball's Best by Decades" series:

1B—Lou Gehrig, Yankees.
2B—Charley Gehringer, Tigers.
SS—Joe Croning, Senators and Red Sox.
3B—Stan Hack, Cubs.
LF—Ted Willams, Red Sox.
CF—Joe DiMaggio, Yankees.
RF—Mel Ott, Giants.
C—Bill Dickey, Yankees; Ernie Lombardi, Braves, Reds and Giants.
P—Carl Hubbell, Giants; Bob Feller, Indians; Red Ruffing, Yankees.

Five of the players named by McCarthy played in the majors last season. They are Hubbell,

JOE McCARTHY

Hack, Ott, Dickey and Lombardi. Cronin also was on the active list although he participated only as pinch hitter.

Williams, DiMaggio, Feller and Ruffing left their baseball jobs to join the armed forces. The first three are expected back in baseball uniforms after the war to add further glory to their names.

Gehringer had finished his playing days and was a coach with the Tigers when the joined the Army Air Forces in 1942.

Hubbell ended a brilliant pitching career last year and signed with the Giants as head of their farm system.

Williams and Feller didn't arrive until late in the 1930-1940 decade but McCarthy insists they belong on his team.

"I can't imagine any one picking the best players of that time and leaving Williams and Feller off," says Joe. "And I expect they'll make many more All-Star teams after the war is over."

War Plant Has No Problems

YELLOW SPRINGS, O., March 24—Here is one plant the war production board doesn't have to worry about! There is no absenteeism, no wage disputes, no strikes, no manpower shortage, no delayed deliveries.

Each employe is a stockholder—and the oldest is 16.

The Reinforcing Specialties Co. is 100 per cent in war work—the making of reinforcings for aluminum casting holds essential in the manufacture of aviation engines. The company has shown a profit each week since its organization last summer, finished the year with a $750 surplus on a business of nearly $2,000.

The employe-stockholders get 55 cents an hour for a 25-hour week plus a $10 dividend every other month.

The project started when some youth-minded citizens of Yellow Springs saw an opportunity for a few youngsters to earn money and learn something about business.

Max Livingston, head of the community youth council and an employe of the Antioch Foundry of General Motors' Delco-Remy division, interested his company in providing the work. The reinforcings are made out of hardware cloth and become part of the molds which shape experimental head castings for Allison engines.

Two girls and three boys tackled the job. Helen Squires, daughter of a Yellow Springs barber, became president.

The youths leased shop space in the youth council quarters. A local sheet metal contractor loaned the necessary equipment. The foundry gave them blueprints and specifications and agreed to pay the same price that was paid to a commercial company.

Shortage of manpower is no problem. When a worker wants a vacation he recruits a substitute. When an employe drops out, he relinquishes his stock to the incoming member.

In September, the organization was expanded to 10 members so the necessary would could go out on schedule and leave time for employes to engage in school activities.

The directors hold their meetings at the soda fountain of the corner drug store.

EPWORTH MISSION YOUTH NIGHT SET

Young People To Occupy Reserved Section at Service.

Young People's night will be observed at the service of the union evangelistic mission in Epworth Methodist church tonight with the evangelist, Gipsy Smith, giving a special message for youth.

Delegations from various Marion churches and from churches of surrounding communities will be present and the entire front section of the church auditorium will be reserved for them. The reserved seats will be available until 7:20 p. m., it was announced. The service will open at 7:30.

At the service Thursday night the evangelist preached on the "birth marks" of the "born again." Rev. Charles W. Harmon of the Green Camp Baptist church offered prayer and Rev. Frank N. Lynch of Marietta, O., a retired Methodist minister, was introduced as a guest and spoke briefly. Mrs. Smith sang.

Lamenting that "so many resist the power of the Holy Ghost," the evangelist declared "You'll never be saved until you listen to the promptings of the Holy Spirit." He developed the thought that no one can sin, indulge in worldly ways, and be a Christian, that people will look at the professed Christian and judge the church, but the true church is those people who have been "born again." As marks of that state of "new birth" he quoted the Bible passages, "He that is born of God sinneth not," "He that is born of God overcometh the world" and "He that is born of God loveth the brethren."

Scrap iron from battle areas is being returned to the United States in huge quantities.

Goodrich Official Gives Talk Here on '44 Rubber Situation

Synthetic Output Reaching High Proportions, Vice President Graham Tells Luncheon Audience.

Thornton G. Graham of Akron, vice president of the B. F. Goodrich Co., spoke on "Rubber Realities of 1944" in a joint meeting of Kiwanis club and the Chamber of Commerce Thursday noon at Hotel Harding.

Mr. Graham, who has been actively associated with the rubber industry for nearly 30 years, linked the problems of the present with those of tomorrow when he said: "Right now the American people must give serious thought to the long-range political and economical problems resulting from the existence of America's war-born capacity for producing synthetic rubber. Already that capacity is greater than the tonnage of rubber used in this country in any single year before the war.

"The industry's ability to compound synthetic rubber has not yet reached the point where we can disregard the use of natural rubber and there is no certainty that our technicians will reach that point in any given number of months, although real progress has been made. It seems quite clear that we will have to get along on synthetic rubber for some time to come and use it wherever we can without using natural crude rubber—saving the latter for use in cases where there is no known substitute for natural rubber.

"The proportions of synthetic rubber used in various compounds have been steadily increasing in all kinds of products, even including heavy duty tires for military as well as for civilian use, and the switch-over at an ever-increasing rate will continue through the months to come because the demand for military and essential civilian rubber products will continue to grow."

Production Situation.

Explaining problems of production, Mr. Graham said, "Our ability to make more synthetic rubber each month depends primarily upon increased production of butadiene, the major raw material in synthetic rubber which can be produced from either alcohol or petroleum. The production of butadiene from petroleum, counted on for about two-thirds of our total supply, has been held back because of construction priorities that conflicted with the program of high octane gasoline.

"Our synthetic rubber producing facilities are approaching full capacity and we will produce as much synthetic rubber in 1944 as we have consumed natural rubber in any year previously. And yet we find ourselves in a more difficult position with respect to rubber—synthetic and crude—than in the supposedly critical years of 1942 and 1943, and this is the reason. Natural rubber is still an almost indispensable ingredient in the manufacture of many products, but the nation's stocks of natural rubber are dangerously low. As a matter of fact, we will probably have less than half as much crude rubber to work with this year as we consumed in each of the years of 1942 and 1943."

Tire Outlook.

In discussing the question of when ordinary "A" card holders will be able to get new tires, Mr. Graham advised motorists to protect the tires you now have to the fullest extent, guard them carefully for it will probably be well into 1945 before new passenger car tires will be available without a certificate proving essential need. And even if you get these tires in 1945 we must have some favorable breaks and freedom from unexpected setbacks all the way down the line."

"National security is, in my opinion, the controlling factor that should determine the future of the synthetic rubber plants," he said. This statement was based on the fact that after the last war America scrapped much of her war material in the belief that there would be no further need to fight for peace.

Continuing with his explanation of the capacity of plants to produce synthetic rubber, he stated, "For the time being natural rubber has the advantage in both performance and price over synthetic for most big volume uses, but from now on and for perhaps two years after the close of hostilities, we will have to depend upon synthetic rubber to fill the major part of our requirements. It will be some time after the war before the far eastern plantations are again operating at normal scale production. It is quite possible that in the two, three or four-year period that lies ahead we shall make as much progress in the improvement in quality and reduction in cost as has been made in numerous other products.

"Whether our synthetic rubber plants continue to operate at full capacity or not, they should serve to fix a ceiling over the price that rubber-consuming America will have to pay in the future for this indispensable material. Obviously it will take a long time to work out all the right answers to the long-range rubber problem. It is going to be more of a political and economic problem than a technical or production one hereafter."

Concerning the economic phase of post-war production, he said, "We should recognize the opportunities to extend benefits to the peoples of all countries—and that certainly includes our own—through the adoption of policies featuring low-cost raw materials in the post-war world.

In summary, Mr. Graham said: "There is no question but that synthetic rubber has arrived. It has come to stay, but in what quantities and on what basis with regard to national security, economics, and politics, no one can say. What will happen to this enormous enterprise—this insurance policy that has begun to pay off just in time—only the future will reveal. The policy should not be allowed to lapse and these magnificent plants torn down once natural rubber becomes available again."

Guests Introduced.

H. A. Krigbaum, president of Kiwanis, introduced guests representing other service clubs. Included were: Superintendent of Schools E. E. Holt, president of the Rotary club; John Lacey, president of Lions club; Miss Ruth Kleinmaier, president of the Matrata club, and Don Williamson, president of the Y's Men's Service club.

Frank Foster, president of the Chamber of Commerce, extended a welcome on behalf of the group. Mr. Krigbaum then introduced R. T. Mason, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce industrial development committee, who in turn introduced other guests, including W. K. Knight and Lt. C. W. Cunningham of the Permanente Metals Corp., W. R. Tappan and Mr. Boutson of the Tappan Stove Co., Ted Hooper, Earl Belichambers, Frank Samuelson and Frank Trockie of the B. F. Goodrich Co.

Guests of members at the meeting were Sgt. Sam Birnbaum, recently returned from duty in the Caribbean area, Sam Gurry of New York City and Charles Ulrich of Marion.

GOLGIS MAKE THE BODY GROW

What's the Inside Story When Your Food Turns to Fat? Science Solves the Secret.

By H. W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

NEW YORK, March 24 — A long-sought secret of nutrition has been partly discovered with the demonstration that a microscopic particle called a Golgi body is the living element which builds fats and proteins.

What element of animal body cells did this was previously unknown. The proteins are the building blocks of the body and the Golgi bodies appear to be the microscopic masons.

Their job is done inside the tissue cells which in the human body number around a quadrillion. The raw materials are the fats and proteins of food, after the digestive system has broken them down, the blood stream has distributed them, and they have filtered through the walls of the various cells.

In each cell there are from one to several dozen Golgi bodies. Within these bodies, the raw materials are apparently transformed into the special kinds of fats and proteins characteristic of each tissue.

Existence Was Doubted

Most of the Golgi bodies are so diminutive — about one-twenty-five thousandth of an inch in diameter—and so transparent, that ever since they were discovered in 1898 by an Italian scientist, Camillo Golgi, there has been doubt even about their existence.

The techniques which helped to verify them and at the same time demonstrated photographically and by chemical means that the little bodies were producing fats and proteins, are reported in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences by Dr. Leonard G. Worley, and his wife, Dr. Elizabeth K. Worley, of the department of biology, Brooklyn College, N. Y., and the Scripps Institute of Oceanography of the University of California.

Dr. Worley, 38, is a native of Lincoln, Neb. His wife is from South Hadley, Mass.

The mystery about Golgi bodies was largely due to the fact that they were not generally believed to be visible until a tissue cell had been killed and its contents rendered visible with salts of certain heavy metals. Then the Golgi bodies showed up as rings, rods and networks. It had never been certain that these forms were not merely precipitations of the metallic salt.

The corresponding living structures are in the form of minute granules and small balls, quite different in shape from the Golgi bodies of dead cells. These bodies have been known for years, but it had never been shown conclusively that they are the living representative of the Golgi apparatus of the dead tissue.

The Worleys used a methylene blue stain which did not kill the cells or their contents. This dye colored the little spheres a darker blue than any of the other scores of particles visible in the cells. Photographically the Worleys were able to trace the transition from the tiny living balls—their consistency that of overripe tomatoes—through the distortion process accompanying death, into the classical and familiar rings and networks discovered by Golgi.

Fully recorded, too, in the pictures was the behavior of the living Golgi bodies in the elaboration of fats and proteins. Each blue ball would begin to swell. In several hours its diameter might expand as much as 10 times, and its volume 100-fold.

Part of this swollen particle would become nearly white, while the rest remained dark. The dark portion would continue to enlarge, and soon from this dark mass tiny droplets by the dozens would leave the Golgi body. Chemical examination showed that these droplets were fat.

GOLGI BODY, considerably enlarged, photographed by Dr. Worley in its living state and while extruding fat droplets, which show light in the picture. Beside it are two other, smaller golgi bodies.

Dark Mass Shrinks

Later, the dark mass would begin to shrink away from the large, light-colored portion of the Golgi body. The latter was found to be largely protein.

After both fats and protein had been discharged, the Golgi body would shrink, sometimes to a little granule again, sometimes breaking into a dozen or more little particles. In either event, these particles would start the cycle over again.

The Worley's studies have been done mainly on the tissue of molluscs and amphibians, with other species of animals to back up the observations. The probability is strong that the human Golgi bodies perform precisely similar nutritional roles.

LOVE'S FAIR HORIZON

By ADELE GARRISON

I DID not wait an instant for any further instructions from Hugh. I knew there would be none. He had turned the carrying out of my plan to fool Shumway over to me without reservation, and I faced Charlie Kent, speaking slowly, and choosing my words carefully.

"You can see," I said, "that Mr. Tiger and Jerry are wearing the clothes of Major Grantland and his friend. Before you take them down to your car, I know that Major Grantland will muffle them up in the same fashion that he and his friend were when they came in here this morning. Nobody will ever recognize them as the Tigers.

Riverhead

"You will drive them to Riverhead, and you will stop at that big gas station where you turn north for that long road into Riverhead. You will complain to the station attendant about these city folks that always are in a hurry. Say there men came to the Grahams this morning, planning to go back on the train leaving Bridgehampton at six-five; that they changed their minds out of a clear sky and decided to go from Riverhead at three-thirty. Say Mrs. Graham tried to get Shumway on the telephone but couldn't reach him, and then called you. Grumble a bit about the calls you had to miss—you'll know what to say. What you want to do is to get it firmly in that garage man's mind that the guests of Mrs. Graham are going to take the train at Riverhead at three-thirty. Let him get a casual glimpse of the two men. Say one's suffering from toothache — that will be Lee Chow, supposedly—and that the other's just getting over the flu. That will be Major Grantland, also fictionally. But if the garage man ever talks, and Shumway hears, the story will stand up.

Elude Bystanders

"If you can manage it, try to drive up to a car of the train which is almost deserted at Riverhead," I went on, "so that you can drive away afterward without anybody who happened to see you being certain that the two men didn't board the train.

"Now for the last things," I finished. "When you reach Riverhead, go into the station and buy two tickets to Pennsylvania station. Then after you have pretended to put the men on the train, drive them back to their home but by another route, as lonely as you can manage. Drop them there, then come back here and report."

Hugh had his hand in the pocket of Harry Underwood's dressing gown, an from it took out his wallet which I guessed he always kept near him. From it he took a twenty dollar bill and handed it to Charlie Kent.

"That's for expenses," he said. "We can settle the change when you get back."

"Thanks," Charlie said, taking out his own wallet, and putting the bill carefully away. Then he looked at the wrist watch which he always carries.

"Time's whittling down," he said, an expression I often had heard him use when he was in a hurry.

Disguising Tigers

"Ready in a jiffy," Hugh said, as he went to the Tiger men, put them into the overcoats ready for them, and muffled them both about their heads so that to the casual eye they looked exactly as Hugh and Lee Chow had done when they came to the farmhouse.

"There!" Hugh finally said, stepping back to inspect his handiwork "I think that ties it. But what's your verdict, Mrs. Graham? You saw the originals."

"Wonderful!" I said heartily. "Is there anything more you want to tell Charlie?"

"Not a thing," he answered quickly, and I turned to Charlie Kent.

"Then there's nothing to delay you any longer," I said, and Charlie, looking at the Tigers, gave a jerk of his head toward the door.

"Let's get going," he said, and the two men followed him out, obviously a bit dazed with their new roles.

"Shall I go down with you?" I asked.

Lock

"No need to if you don't want to," Hugh answered." That side door has a spring lock, hasn't it?"

"Yes," I answered smiling. "But I imagine Katie will be strictly on duty."

"Yes, you can bet she won't miss nuthin'," Sam Tiger growled from the folds of the big white handkerchief which tied up his jaws. Prudently, I made no reply, and the little procession filed out.

Hugh closed the door after them, and then with twitching lips brought forward a chair, seated me in it, and going to the bedroom put his head cautiously through it. Then he closed the door noiselessly and came back to a chair opposite me.

"Lee Chow's fast asleep again, thank Heaven," he said. "It's the best medicine for him."

"I'm so glad," I said.

"Anything on your mind before Charlie Kent comes back?" he queried.

"Nothing special," I said. "Mother Graham is trying to get Faith to sleep, the boys won't be home from school for another hour or two, and Katie is attending to things in the kitchen."

"Then," he said, leaning toward me with a smile, "suppose you bring me up to date about the things that have happened to you since I last saw you. Have you received my postal cards?"

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Eye Defects

There are all sorts of paradoxes that come up about vision. In one factory a girl on the assorting line turned in nearly twice as much work as her fellow workers: then something went wrong: when they came to examine the quality of her work it was way below par: when they examined her vision that was way below par too: she worked more rapidly than the others because her poor vision did not allow her to see the defects in the material she was sorting. This was a common experience in certain war factories, until more careful eye examinations began to be made.

A chauffeur or truck driver on the contrary with only one eye is found by statistics to have fewer accidents than a two eyed man, and far fewer than a two eyed man with fifty per cent vision in each eye.

One would think that color vision was a necessity for the safety of a motorist. But statistically the traffic departments of many cities show there are almost no accidents due to this defect among color blind drivers. They learn to compensate: they learn the position of the red and green lights in the stop signals and hence can tell which is showing: they stop and start with crowds, and conscious of their defect are always on the alert.

For a while it was said that color-blind aviators did better than normal ones in some jobs, that they could spot camouflaged objectives in the field better for lack of color sense: but I think this idea has been given up. Aviators have the finest vision of the sons of men.

The relation of error and accident in work to defective vision is in many instances due to whether the individual knows of the defect in vision. The one-eyed chauffeur is always on the alert, and does better than the over-confident two eyed ones. The sorting girl, on the contrary, was plenty conscientious, but simply unaware of her bad eyesight.

Conditions of total war have certainly brought out the eyesight deficiencies of our population. It is hard to realize until you think about it that a person may be sublimely unconscious of having bad eyesight. They started out to look at the world through their own eyes, that is the way the world looks to them and it never occurs to them that it looks any different to anybody else. Yet to them there may be no reds or yellows, only different shades of grays, and their middle distance may be blurred, or the far distance blurred, or everything look like a flat plate.

One of the most important of the new developments in testing vision is this question of perception of depth. It is of vital importance to some workers, such as the operator of a steel crane, though most of us could go along in a flat world and never know the difference and some of us do it, of course, depends on perfectly co-ordinated double vision. If one of your eyes is badly below par you live in a flat world.

The old fashioned stereoscope brings out this defect in a rough way, but there have been devised much more delicate and accurate instruments to ascertain whether both eyes are working together.

The Stars Say—

For Saturday, March 25

EXCELLENT prospects for steady progress upon cherished goals and expansive and enduring objectives, as read from the predominant aspects configurations. It demands persistent, serious and concentrated efforts to attain sound and enduring success. This may attract the attention and approbation of elders or those in substantial positions, whose rewards may take the form of gifts, trusts or bequests. However, it might be well to shun all extravagances, excesses and personal prodigality.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a year of surprising success, or of an unusual culmination of serious and determined efforts to reach important goals or cherished hopes and wishes in finance, business and personal ambitions there will be happy and prosperous attainments. In this, elders or other solid persons may assist by trusts, gifts or legacies. Inclinations to extravagant adventures either in investments or the pursuit of pleasure should be curbed.

A child born on this day will have sound and sterling gifts and qualities, and will achieve success, although disposed to the good things of life extravagantly and perhaps excessively.
